CIVIC AIR BOARD FOR VICTORIA TO BE APPOINTED

Britain's Emergency Financial Measure In Effect

Fall In Sterling Will Be Limited States Snowden

Disagreeable, But Not Catastrophic, Says Chancellor of Exchequer on Gold Standard Suspension; Henderson May Join National Ministry; Election Talk on Protective Tariff Issue

London, Sept. 22. — Rushed through Parliament in record time and signed by a royal commission, the British Government's emergency measure suspending the gold standard went into effect to-day for a period of six months. The Stock Exchange was closed for the second day.

The House of Commons passed it just before closing time yesterday evening in spite of half-hearted attacks by Labor back-benchers, and the House of Lords required only two minutes to give the necessary three readings. The commission acted for the King, who is in Scotland.

There was no division of the final vote, but the government won majorities of about 100 on successive closure motions. Labor members opposed the bill chiefly o nthe grounds that economy measures already adopted were unnecessary if gold payments were suspended.

Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who sponsored the measure, went on the air to assure the nation that the fall in the pound sterling would be "limited" and to invoke its confidence in the government's ability to weather the crisis.

"The consequences of the suspension," he said, "are bound to be disagreeable. In some ways they may be serious but they will not be catastrophic."

NO RISK OF INFLATION

"The British budget is now the most securely balanced budget in the world. There is no longer any risk of an internal inflation and there are no longer any grounds for distrusting the essential soundness of our financial position."

He expressed regret at the plight of the foreigners "who still have money deposited here and will be able to take it back—if they wish to take it back in depreciated pounds, and will therefore suffer a loss in terms of their own currencies. We deplore that loss and have done all we can to avert it."

ARGENTINE NEGOTIATES BIG LOAN

Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Sept. 22—The Argentine government was said in official circles to-day to have concluded arrangements with Brown Brothers, Harriman and Company for a loan of $25,000,000, maturing in six to nine months at 6 per cent interest.

The credits designed for redemption of the $50,000,000 loan which is due on October 1. Argentine bankers will purchase $20,000,000 and United States firms doing business in this country will take the other $5,000,000.

Enforce Act To Prevent Profiteering

London, Sept. 22.—Regulations under an Emergency Powers Act, such as were effected at the time of the British general strike in 1926, will be enforced to prevent profiteering in food and an unwarranted rise in general retail prices it was authoritatively learned to-day.

The order also exempts reasonable traveling expenses or personal purchases.

ROYSTON YOUTH DIES IN FIRST HUNTING MISHAP

David Marshall, Eighteen, Found Dead in Woods Near Union Bay

Courtenay, B.C., Sept. 22.—David Marshall, eighteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Marshall of Royston, was found dead this morning in Bloedel's slashing near Union Bay as a result of a shooting accident. Young Marshall had apparently jumped up on a log and his shotgun went off, the shot going through his hands and into his head. Death was not immediate as the ground near the log was disturbed where the youth had struggled in agony.

Marshall went hunting with two companions on Sunday. He became separated and his companions returned without him.

When he failed to show up search parties were organized on Monday and to-day the body was found by a party under the provincial police. This is the first accident of the hunting season on the Island.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS DISCUSSED

Mayor Explains the Present Situation to Members of City Council

Relief Work Cannot Be on Standard of Wages, He Says

Criticism of the methods employed by the National Unemployed Workers' Association, a full statement on the city's present position on the new relief work scheme, and debate on relief wages were features of a general unemployment discussion at the City Council meeting this morning.

The council had three complaints before it from the N.U.W.A., two in regard to water services for unemployed and the third dealing with wages. The Trades and Labor Council also protested against any reduction in relief wages.

The mayor was instructed to reply to the letter from the Trades and Labor Counril, setting forth the city's position. The other letters were received and filed.

The mayor declared the N.U.W.A. was not trying to help anybody, not even its own members, in the way it was criticizing everything offered to them. He understood, he said, that the leaders were instructing the members not to pay rent, water or light bills.

"These people themselves are the only ones talking about wage reduction. If they keep talking about it they will finally bring it on themselves. They should realize by this time that the rate of pay for relief work cannot be the same as standard wages and they should accept the work as it is given, that is, as relief," he said.

On the question of the present relief programme, the mayor was pressed for a full explanation by Alderman R. C. Dewar. He asked what position the city was in respect to the two governments, if the governments were going to take care of single men and other points.

In reply the mayor explained that up to the present time the labor costs of relief work had been split three ways with the Dominion Government, Provincial Government and city paying a share each and the city bearing the cost of materials. While agreements under this plan had run out some time

Financial Situation To-day

Great Britain entered its second day of six months suspension from the gold standard with signs of slow adjustment to new conditions, and the London Stock Exchange prepared to open to-morrow.

Trading on the New York Exchange went back to normal proportions with prices rallying slowly from yesterday's reaction to the British step. Ban against short selling remained in force.

The British pound sold at 104 francs ($4.077) and 105 francs ($4.11) at the opening of the official money market in Paris. The Amsterdam Bourse reopened and the Netherlands bank announced it would take over outstanding contingent positions.

A bankers' conference in Brussels decided to constitute a consortium with resources of $280,000,000 to support the local market if necessary. German stock exchanges and metal markets remained closed.

The federal structures committee meeting in London promised to support the Rupee. The Bank of Bombay raised its discount rate from 7 to 8 per cent.

The Bank of Brazil switched its exchange transactions to a dollar basis of 16.1 milreis to 100 cents.

England planned to enforce anti-profiteering measures. Purchases of foreign exchange were restricted.

France Sees Fierce Competition Coming

Paris, Sept. 22—The first shock of Great Britain's suspension of the gold standard was wearing off to-day and optimism on the future of international finance was beginning to assert itself. Technical writers considered that Great Britain had suffered a hard blow, but would recover rapidly without great trouble to the rest of Europe.

JAPANESE WOMEN LEAVE NANKING

Nanking, Sept. 22.—The Japanese consul here announced to-day that all Japanese women and children would evacuate Nanking to-morrow.

Chinese authorities promised protection for those leaving.

INDIA CONFERENCE TO SUPPORT RUPEE

London, Sept. 22.—The federal structures committee of the Indian round-table conference to-day promised its support for the rupee in this time of British financial crisis.

A member of the delegation of princes told Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for India, that his plea to the members yesterday to stand by the rupee had not been made in vain. He promised that his conferees would co-operate in tiding over the difficult times which might face us in India also."

RAIN ELEVATOR PROBLEM LOOMS

Company's Solicitor to Meet Mayor to Discuss Position

In view of the order of the Railway Board of Canada refusing the application of the Victoria Council and the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals for the same export rate on grain via the C.P.R., as Vancouver has something to have to be done regarding the future of the elevator, the City Council was told this morning.

Mayor Anscomb stated that legal counsel of the grain terminal company would confer with him within the next few days to discuss plans for the elevator.

The council, in conjunction with the company, asked the railway board to grant an export grain rate on the C.P.R. via Victoria the same as that applying via Vancouver, as given by the C.N.R. This was refused.

Negotiations on the elevator will follow the termination of the agreement between the Alberta Wheat Pool and the elevator interests which expired on September 15. It was hoped that by securing an export rate on grain equal to that applicable to Vancouver, shipments would be diverted through the local terminal, putting it on a paying basis.

As far as the city's part is concerned, the semi-annual bond interest, due in July, has not been paid to date, it was learned this morning. The city has not yet served notice of the default.

THREE WERE BURNED AS APARTMENT COLLAPSED

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—One man was killed to death, another man and woman buried alive, and several other persons injured early to-day when a four-story twin-apartment structure collapsed.

The dead man was George Mitchell, the proprietor, who planned to sail for Greece, Greece, next week to bring his wife and baby to this city.

Six hours after the buildings crashed into ruins, rescuers reached the man and woman buried beneath tons of debris. Both were still alive and were removed to hospital in a critical condition.

They are Miss Anna Bell, twenty-four, waitress and George W. Jamieson, thirty-eight, who might have escaped had he not returned to the crumbling house for a friend after rescuing his mother and sister.

RESCUED PILOT

Forced down at sea, Christian Johanssen (above), veteran German aviator, and his two co-pilots, Willy Rody and Fernando da Costa Viege, of the monoplane Esa, was rescued yesterday in a sensational manner by the Norwegian Ms. Belmoira. They took off from Portugal on an attempted non-stop flight to New York and were sighted by a liner off Cape Race.

BRITISH PREMIER TAKES REST ON DOCTOR'S ADVICE

Ramsay MacDonald Leaves London to Recuperate From Strain in Country

Associated Press

London, Sept. 22.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who is suffering from fatigue and overstrain, left his Downing Street residence this afternoon for a few days holiday in the country which he is taking on medical advice.

The Premier, who looked pale and tired, left his residence by a back door in order to avoid crowds in front of the house.

"The Prime Minister is feeling the effects of fatigue and overstrain and, acting on medical advice, he is leaving London to-night for a few days rest in the country," an official statement said.

No alarm was felt in government circles because Mr. MacDonald is withdrawing from London for a few days. The fact that he can seek rest after his heavy task of the last few weeks was interpreted as another factor of strength in the national situation.

In the House of Commons yesterday the Prime Minister appeared physically fit but his strength of spirit in pushing through the government programme was unflagging.

Mr. MacDonald's recuperative powers are considered little short of marvelous and his friends believe after a few days in the country or at a southern coast resort where he can play some golf, he will return buoyant as ever.

EXCHANGE RATES NOT ALTERED IN SOUTH AFRICA

Pretoria, South Africa, Sept. 22.—There will be no change made in the exchange rates between "gold-based" South Africa and "sterling-based" Great Britain, for a time at least.

The representatives of the large commercial banks and the Reserve Bank of South Africa held an important conference here to-day, and it was decided that until further notice, which may be expected within a few days, the exchange rates will not be altered.

Measures have been taken to prevent any movement for withdrawal of South African funds from London.

LEAGUE INTERVENES TO STOP JAPAN IN EAST

Geneva, Sept. 22.—The representatives of China and Japan at the League of Nations were called upon at a special session of the League Council to-day to withdraw the Japanese and Chinese troops now in the disputed Manchurian area.

Spokesmen for the two nations were summoned to meet with a council committee to determine the best means of withdrawing their troops without compromising security of life and property.

ABIDE BY COVENANT

This action was taken after Kekichi Yoshizawa, Japanese representative, had promised that Japan would abide by the principles of the League covenant and the Kellogg pact and would take all possible measures to achieve an amicable and just settlement.

The council meeting broke up with the promise that it would be convened "as soon as possible" to act upon the recommendation of its committee and to hear the spokesmen of the two powers.

COUNTER ATTACK

Tokio, Sept. 22.—A strong force of Chinese troops made a counter-attack to-day at Kungchuling south of Changshun and about half-way between Mukden and Harbin. The attack began at 9.30 p.m.

Five-man Committee Will Be Selected By Council To Watch Aviation Here

Proposal of Alderman W. T. Straith Endorsed This Morning; Board to Include Two Commercial Pilots; Consideration to Be Given Emergency Landing Field, Which Is Sought by Chamber of Commerce

Appointment of an air board, consisting of five members, to investigate all matters relating to aviation in Victoria and to report thereon to the City Council, was decided upon by the council at its meeting this morning.

The board will include at least one member of the City Council, two commercially licensed pilots with at least ten years' flying experience, and two other members. It will be appointed annually by the council and will act without remuneration.

Major Don MacLaren, D.S.O., M.C., of the Canadian Airways, and Squadron Leader Tudhope, of the Royal Air Lines, will be asked to serve on the board, it was learned.

The council this morning left to the industrial committee the selection of members for the board, which will be recommended back to the council.

NOT UNANIMOUS

Three aldermen were opposed to the plan, but the rest of the council thought it would be a good plan to solve the air situation here. Aldermen J. L. Mara, H. O. Litchfield and J. A. Worthington voted against.

Speaking to his motion, Alderman W. T. Straith, the proposer, explained the reason for the composition of the board and other details in connection with the plan.

Alderman Robert Smith spoke in favor of the plan, but Alderman Mara said it was not needed. All the expert advice needed was available from the government departments.

"Yes, but the people here won't heed their advice," said Alderman Straith.

Alderman James Adam said that every city in Canada of any size had an airport, and Victoria should watch things closely. Alderman R. T. Williams also spoke in favor of the board.

Probably one of the first things the new board will have to discuss will be provision of an emergency landing field for planes here.

A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce aviation committee appeared before the council this morning to point out the need of an emergency landing field.

R. H. B. Ker, speaker for the delegation, said his body did not wish to suggest any unnecessary expenditures but merely wished to point out that the city was greatly in need of an emergency field, as the license of the present air field had expired.

He hoped, he said, that the council would see fit to provide either Lansdowne Field or some other. The council should consider the "health" of pilots and passengers arriving over Victoria with a machine and being unable to find a landing field.

"We hope you will consider this matter without delay," Mr. Ker said.

James Parfitt supplemented Mr. Ker's remarks briefly, stating there was a real necessity for keeping Victoria on the air map.

Alderman H. O. Litchfield thought the Chamber of Commerce could take the matter up on its own since the ratepayers had already refused the city's airport plan.

Before the delegation left Alderman Straith explained the situation regarding Lansdowne Field. Squadron Leader Cowley, head of the aviation department at Ottawa, had definitely refused to fly into Lansdowne. Since the expiry of the city's private license at the end of last month, the city had no further interest in the field.

RESCUED FLIERS WILL REACH NEW YORK ON FRIDAY

Rody, Johanssen and Costa Viega Transferred to Ss. Stavengerfjord

Moyle and Allen Plan Twenty-hour Flight From Nome to Tacoma

Associated Press

Ss. Stavengerfjord, by radio to the Associated Press, Sept. 22—Willy Rody, Christian Johanssen and Fernando da Costa Viega, transatlantic airmen who were picked up off the Newfoundland coast by the motorship Belmoira, were taken aboard this vessel to-day and will arrive in New York Friday afternoon.

The transfer from the Belmoira was made at 1.30 a.m., E.S.T., in latitude 48.05 north, longitude 49.28.

The Stavengerfjord is a Norwegian-American liner.

PACIFIC FLIERS

Nome, Alaska, Sept. 22—Plans for a flight of upwards of twenty hours from Nome, to Tacoma, Wash., were made to-day by Cecil A. Allen and Don Moyle, California aviators.

They acted on instructions from Richard Fenton, their business manager, in preparing to attempt to reach Tacoma, home city of John Buffelin, lumberman and sponsor of their flight from the Orient.

The aviators, who were missing several days on an attempted non-stop flight from Samushiro Beach, Japan, to Seattle, arrived here Sunday evening from Miano Pilgino, Siberia.

PANGBORN'S PLANS

Tokio, Sept. 22—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., American fliers, planning a transpacific flight, said today it would be about a week before they would be able to start.

They said they had been delayed in outfitting the plane and installing additional fixtures.

The fliers said they might abandon the idea of landing in Seattle and try for a long-distance record.

The distance from Samushiro Beach, where they will take off, to Seattle, is about 4,400 miles if the circle route is followed.

HEALTH BY-LAW GIVEN APPROVAL

Council Passes Measure to Limit Keeping of Cows, Goats and Poultry

Regulators designed to control the number of goats, cows and chickens which may be kept within city limits, and which will have the effect of eventually abolishing dairies in the city, was passed by the City Council this morning.

The measure is an amendment to the Health By-law and the main provisions do not come into effect until July, 1933.

The by-law provides that after July 1, 1933, "no person shall keep more than two cows or more than two goats in any stable, yard, or other enclosure within the limits of the municipality, and that no person shall keep such cows or goats unless the ground area on which they are kept, when not tethered on unfenced land, is at least 600 square feet for each cow or 300 square feet for each goat."

It also provides for the keeping of not more than fifteen head of poultry in one poultry house, and that twenty square feet for each head of poultry will be required.

Regulations are set out governing the distance which a poultry pen, pigsty, cow or goat stable, may be situated in relation to a dwelling house.

DENMARK IMPOSES EMBARGO ON GOLD

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 22.—The government to-day imposed an embargo on the export of gold effective immediately.

DOLLAR AND POUND TAKE DROP TO-DAY

Canadian Dollar Quoted at 93 To-day, Equalling Yesterday's Close

Pound Dropped to $4.19, 8 Cents Better Than Opening Quotation

Canadian Press

New York, Sept. 22.—Both the Canadian dollar and the pound sterling declined to-day on local foreign exchange markets.

The Canadian dollar was quoted at 93 cents at closing this afternoon, the same as yesterday's closing quotation, while the pound dropped to $4.19, 8 cents better than the previous close.

Banking officials here thought Canadian funds were at the lowest ebb since those years immediately succeeding the Great War, when the discount rate on the dollar was quoted at a maximum of about 17 per cent.

No definite reason could be assigned to the drop in value of Canadian funds in values of United States currency, although officials of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce suggested it was partly due to lack of gold shipments from Canada and sympathy with sterling.

Gold shipments reaching New York from Canada within a little more than a week have totaled only slightly above $2,000,000, and failed to check the downward movement of the dollar. Announcement that $500,000 in gold would be forthcoming from Canadian banks shortly had no apparent effect on the exchange market.

Canadian Bank of Commerce officials pointed out the comparative weakness of Canadian bonds here within recent days as probably having a possible lowering of confidence in Canadian funds.

LONDON ASKS ABOUT OTTAWA ECONOMIC MEET

Canadian Press

London, Sept. 22.—The Imperial Economic Conference which was to have been held at Ottawa some weeks ago, but was postponed indefinitely, was the subject of a question in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Malcolm MacDonald, son of the Prime Minister and Under-Secretary for Dominions in the National Government, told the questioner he was not aware of any announcement by the Canadian Government as to when the conference would be held. Asked if any information was available, Mr. MacDonald replied, "No, sir."

Ship Carrying 1,500 Unemployed May Sail From Coast For U.K.

Vancouver, Sept. 22—Within a few weeks a ship chartered by the Dominion Government may sail for the United Kingdom and Europe with 1,500 persons, who to-day find themselves without prospect of employment in Vancouver.

The ship will sail if combined efforts of city and provincial government officials are successful.

Relief officer H. W. Cooper reported to the city relief committee that the plan is now under consideration at Ottawa. It reached the capital through the medium of the provincial administration.

The scheme is to provide transportation at the government's expense for those aliens and Britishers out of work in Vancouver who wish to return to their native lands and relatives, but who can not afford the expense.

Mr. Cooper said he had visited foreign consuls in the city and estimates there are 1,000 aliens who wish to return, as well as 500 from the United Kingdom.

WILL STIMULATE INDUSTRY, SAYS EDWIN SELIGMAN

New York, N.Y., Sept. 22.—Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, internationally-known economist of Columbia University, thinks the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain will stimulate industry.

"The new law is an act of wisdom and statesmanship," said Dr. Seligman. "Far from being a declaration of bankruptcy, it is an evidence of the determination to grapple with an actual situation."

The forsaking of the gold standard, he added, implies a burden on the creditor class and a relief to the debtor class, and will give productive industry a new chance.

BANKS BUSY OVER EXCHANGE

Restrictions Under Which Money Can Be Sent Out of England Announced

Exchange departments of local banks continued as centres of much interest to-day, as the Canadian dollar continued to fluctuate and the pound sterling held low.

The Canadian dollar in the middle of the morning sank as low as 89½ cents. At the close, however, it recovered to around 91 and 92 cents.

The Victoria quotation for the pound sterling held around $4.53 to $4.58½ in the terms of the depreciated Canadian dollars. Pound sterling in New York was around $4.10 in United States money.

Transactions in sterling have been few during the last two days, as it was almost impossible yesterday for persons in England who sought to send money out here to get accommodation. Persons here who desired to send money to England were waiting until quotations settled down.

To-day banking connections were notified of the terms of the restrictions under which money can be sent out of England. This relieved to a certain extent the apprehensions of pensioners, remittance men and others here who derive part or all of their incomes in England. They, however, will lose by the depreciated exchange.

The terms of the British treasury order as received by cable from London by F. J. Fuller, manager of Logan & Bryan, sets out the terms prohibiting the purchase of foreign exchange there by British subjects or residents of the United Kingdom except "for purposes of normal trading requirements, to fulfil contracts existing before the gold standard was suspended yesterday and reasonable travel and other personal purposes."

FALL IN STERLING WILL BE LIMITED, STATES SNOWDEN

HENDERSON HOME SECRETARY?

Newspapers affirmed and denied a report that a movement was under way to draft leaders of the Labor opposition into the national ministry, now composed of Conservatives, Liberals and minority Labor members.

The Daily Mail said on what it termed first-hand authority that Premier Ramsay MacDonald was negotiating with Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, his former colleague, to make Mr. Henderson home secretary and to find places for other former Labor ministers. The appointments were said to depend on the Conservatives.

The Daily Herald, Labor party organ, said it was informed on the highest authority that such a plan was not being contemplated.

MACDONALD SUPPORTED

The possibility of an early election loomed once more on the strength of a meeting of back-bench Conservatives who declared unanimously in favor of an immediate appeal to the people on a protective tariff issue. They pledged unqualified support to Mr. MacDonald in the event that he led the way.

The Daily Express, firm believer in a high tariff, said the Premier was prepared to call an election this fall with a protectionist programme on the basis of growing support among the Liberals for such a move.

U.S. VIEW FAVORABLE

Washington, Sept. 22.—The American Government regards Great Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard as likely to improve economic conditions in England and elsewhere in the world.

This was made clear to-day in highest quarters.

The position was taken that the actual suspension could not be regarded as serious as had been the constant possibility of action.

So far as the United States is concerned, it may bring a stronger competition in certain exports where American business is in keeping with products of other nations.

This amounts to about 10 per cent in such countries as the Argentine, where surveys recently were made.

The British action is looked upon by this government as the adoption of a variable standard rather than the complete abandonment of the gold standard.

BAYCHIMO IS FREE OF ICE

Arctic Trading Steamer, After Narrow Escape in North, Is Now Headed South

Point Barrow, Alaska, Sept. 22.—The Hudson's Bay Company trading steamer Baychimo, which for several days had been in danger of being crushed and beached, to-day escaped the clutches of the arctic ice pack and headed southeast along the coast to safety.

A favorable wind yesterday opened small leads in the ice and the Baychimo left at daybreak to-day. Other vessels of the hardy fleet which annually trades in this far north territory had gone southward earlier.

Point Barrow already is in the grip of winter weather. All lakes and lagoons in the vicinity have frozen over and the long, dark days of the Arctic winter are approaching rapidly.

Memorial In France To R-101 Victims

Canadian Press

London, Sept. 22.—The memorial to the officers and men, and passengers including Lord Thomson, who lost their lives when the giant dirigible R-101 crashed in France last October, was unveiled to-day above the graves of the victims in Cardington churchyard. There was little ceremony, workmen merely removing the surrounding boarding which revealed a plain altar tomb, approached by steps.

The Royal Air Force insignia and motto is carved on the end, and on the other is the inscription: "Here lie the bdoies of forty-eight officers and when who perished in His Majesty's airship R-101, on the fifth of October, 1930." On the sides of the tomb are the names of the victims in alphabetical order.

Laborites Debate Old-age Pensions

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 22—Sharp division of opinion over old age pensions, particularly as to the qualifying age, developed this morning when resolutions on this subject came before Trades and Labor Congress delegates as they continued sessions of their forty-seventh annual meeting here to-day.

Debate arose over a resolution from Toronto railway carmen demanding pensions of $50 a month from the federal government for workers of sixty-five and more, residence qualification to be fifteen years.

There was an insistent demand for a lower age limit. Delegates suggested sixty and fifty-five years as a suitable age limit.

Ernest Ingles, chairman of the resolution committee, said that personally he would favor a low qualifying age, but the congress faced a situation to-day where the asking of too much might jeopardize chances of getting anything. He reminded them that no province east of Ontario enjoyed the benefit of the present pensions. He urged them to bend their effort to get the pension at sixty-five.

Delegates took warm exception to this advice, arguing that industry to-day is demanding young men. They contended, too, that retention of older men because they were veterans was creating unemployment among younger men.

ASK MORE THAN EXPECT

One faction argued that the best policy was to ask for more than you expect, then take a compromise. Others were afraid that by grasping at the shadow they would lose the substance.

The resolution was eventually referred back and the question will be threshed out later in the session, possibly on the premises of another resolution.

Another resolution from Toronto railway men, asking federal legislation to force all employers of more than twelve persons to grant at least a one week holiday a year with full pay, was passed.

Congress passed a resolution from Montreal asking that old age pensions be made a purely federal measure to cover all provinces. Congress endorsed Quebec carpenters and joiners in their request to the Quebec government to pass enabling legislation which would put the old age pensions into effect in that province.

James C. Shaneassy, general president of the Barbers' Union of America, an international visitor to the meeting, attacked money power of the world and laid the blame for present conditions on control of capital. Banks, he said, should be operated by the government for convenience, not profit.

WOMAN UP ON OPIUM CHARGE

Vancouver Assizes Hears of Attempted Plot to Smuggle 165 Tins Into Canada

Vancouver, Sept. 22—Discovery by a Canadian customs officer of 165 tins of opium, concealed in two trunks, caused Leung Sing Kay, Chinese woman, to answer in assize court to-day a charge of having narcotic drugs in her possession.

The trial is proceeding before Mr. Justice F. B. Gregory and a jury of two women and ten men.

The opium, it is said, retails for about $100 a tin.

When Customs Officer J. W. Murray's suspicions were roused by the woman's conduct and by the shallow tray, which he had removed from her trunk for examination, he investigated and found that the tray had a false bottom, where sixty-nine tins of opium were concealed. Examination of a second trunk, also alleged to belong to Leung Sing Kay, revealed a cache of ninety-six tins, hidden in a similar manner.

The accused had returned that day, April 27 last, from China.

As Officer Murray tore open the false bottom of the first trunk, a chinaman, believed to be the woman's husband, together with two children, one an infant in arms, disappeared, after exchanging some remarks with her in Chinese. The man has not been seen since then.

DISTRIBUTION OF COST

Under the new plan the government had asked for the city's tentative plan which then had been ratified by the council and submitted. This scheme provided for the Dominion Government paying fifty per cent of labor costs, the Provincial Government twenty-five per cent and the city twenty-five per cent, plus the cost of materials. He understood the city's programme had already been forwarded to Ottawa for approval.

In addition to this the government was taking care of single men who would receive $2 per day in the camps, out of which they paid $5 cents a day's board. Forty men had already gone from the city and 100 more would follow shortly. Married men, on municipal relief were to receive 30 cents an hour, he understood from newspaper reports. It was also provided that an age restriction of only those over nineteen years for relief was decided.

The council also had before it a letter from the Victoria West brotherhood approving the relief programme proposed by the city, as it included the co-ordination of the Sooke and Goldstream water systems, thereby benefiting the district. A copy of a resolution sent to the provincial government seeking an amendment to the programme which would make it possible for pipe required for the work to be manufactured in Victoria was read.

Chemainus Man Sustains Injury

Chemainus, Sept. 22.—With a fractured skull and other injuries sustained when he was thrown from the top of a wood truck, T. W. Eberts is in a critical condition in the Chemainus General Hospital.

Eberts and Ray Andrews both fell to the ground when a truck driven by Garnett Andrews swerved on the highway here Sunday, according to the Provincial Police. Eberts's head struck the road surface.

UNITE TO FIGHT INVADING ENEMY

Canton Insurgents Making Peace With Nationalists to Deal With Japan

Peace and Unification Conference Suggested to Form New Government

Hongkong, Sept. 22.—The insurgent Chinese Government at Canton issued a proclamation to-day asserting peace would be made with the Central Nationalist Government at Nanking in order that United China might "deal with Japan" for the latter's occupation of Southern Manchuria.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK TO RESIGN?

The promulgation said Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Nanking Government and centre of the dispute between Nanking and Canton, had notified the southerners of his resignation.

It was said that the insurgent government at Canton would be abolished and that a "peace and unification conference" would be called to form a new nationalist government centred at Nanking.

Once the political unification of North and South China is accomplished southern leader said, the nation would "deal with Japan."

"The Council of the League," Chiang continued, "is dealing with the matter at Geneva to-day. We have asked the council, once the Japanese troops withdraw, to help in finding a peaceful solution to this conflict.

AVOIDING CLASH

"We are confident that every impartial inquiry will give us the fullest justice and compensation. As we have entrusted our case to the League, the national army has received the strictest orders to avoid all possibility of a clash with the invaders.

"We exhort the entire nation to maintain a dignified calm. We have ordered all civilian authorities to take the strictest measures to protect Japanese citizens in our midst. We know how often the innocent are made to suffer for the misdeeds of the militarists.

"All internal dissensions must cease. We call upon everyone—man and woman—and upon every political group to rally around the National Government which is engaged in a fight for the safety and independence of the country.

"There is but one China, one national representation, to-day. Let no provocation disturb the attitude of calm and determined expectancy which the nation must impose upon itself. The National Government is watching events. It has taken the people of the country into its confidence and will publicly render an account of the situation from time to time."

Nanking, Sept. 22.—Addressing a mass meeting to-day, Chiang-Kai-shek head of the Chinese Nationalist Government, said that if the League of Nations and Kellogg Pact signatories "fail to uphold justice" between China and Japan regarding Manchuria, "the National Government is prepared for a final and supreme struggle."

"I shall lead the army and the entire nation," said the Chinese president, "in the fight for the preservation of our race and to uphold the dignity of our people.

"Let me assure you that I shall stand or fall with my country. I shall go to the front and, if necessary, fall with other patriots."

B.C. FINANCING PLANS CHANGED

Temporary Bank Loans to Replace Money Market Borrowings

Discount Against Dollar May Be Costly to Province

British Columbia will not go into the money markets for fresh borrowings, but will carry expenditures by temporary bank loans because of the exchange confusion following the suspension of the gold standard in Great Britain.

As the government's loans are payable in New York as well as Canadian funds, the discount against the Canadian dollar may prove costly to British Columbia.

No investor, whether he lives in Canada or not, will cash a British Columbia bond coupon under present conditions, of course, without demanding payment in New York funds.

Acting promptly the Finance Department saved a substantial loss on this account by covering all its autumn interest payments, amounting to $380,000, at the exchange rate of 2 per cent, prevailing then. If this had not been done these payments would have to be met at the rate existing when the payments became due. As no other large interest payments have to be made until January, it is hoped here the exchange will have adjusted itself in time to save the province from any large loss.

LABOR UPHOLDS EMBARGO POLICY AGAINST RUSSIA

Unlimited Importation Would Hit Canadian Workers, Says President

Resolution to Resume Diplomatic Relations Voted Down By Congress

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 22.—Backing the expressed view of their president, Tom Moore, delegates to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, this morning voted down a resolution from New Westminster Railway Carmen calling on Dominion Government to resume diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

LIVELY OPPOSITION

Action was taken in the face of lively opposition from a minority, some of whom criticized President Moore for his remarks at Toronto in commendation of the Federal Government's action in closing Canadian trade doors to certain Russian goods.

After listening to the heated battle on the floor of the Congress over the Russian trade question, President Moore rose to reiterate his stand at Toronto and to read to delegates what he actually said on that occasion.

Rejection of the New Westminster resolution was followed by similar action on a motion from Toronto District Labor Council censoring the Federal Government on the score of their action to Russia. The debate was adjourned while delegates were discussing a Montreal resolution which condemned the Canadian embargo on certain Russian goods.

"I do not accept this resolution as a trial of the president of this congress," said Mr. Moore, in rising after criticism had been voiced of his stand in Toronto.

MUST BE CAREFUL

"If," continued Mr. Moore, "the wording of the resolution meant a political alliance with Russia, then the congress should proceed with care. There was no prohibition of trade with Russia, but certain articles were barred because it was thought their importation would be injurious to the interest of Canadian workers.

Russian pulp, for example, was doing grevious harm to pulp mill workers in eastern Canada. This, he said, was one of the reasons he took his stand against importation of this product. On the other hand, farm implement workers might claim that Russian trade would benefit them. These workers are not affiliated with the congress and he believed it is duty to take action which would protect their own organizations first.

EXPORTING NEEDED PRODUCTS

Russia, continued the president, has adopted the policy of not importing anything for consumption of their own people. They insisted on exporting products actually needed by their own workers. From such a policy Canadian workers had nothing to gain. His judgment to-day was the same as it was when he spoke in Toronto. His concern with Russia was not political, it was purely with the effect of trade on the economic condition of Canadian workers. He refused to accept the theory that trade with Russia would cure Canadian unemployment. In the future, perhaps, change in Russia might bring about a greater consumption by their own people and a subsequent exchange of goods.

The president received strong support from many delegates, and bitter opposition from others. The vote which finally killed the resolution was overwhelmingly in favor of his stand.

NAVY INQUIRY IS CONCLUDED

Portsmouth, Eng., Sept. 22.—The inquiry into hardships resulting from navy pay cuts was concluded to-day and a report probably will be made to the board of the Admiralty to-morrow.

It is understood that Atlantic fleet exercises, which were postponed as a result of the seamen's "strike" at Invergordon, Scotland, may take place on a reduced scale off Portland.

Canadian Good Roads Association Meets In Quebec

Safety Legislation Demanded by Toll of Human Lives Taken Annually in Automobile Accidents, Says J. P. Bickell at Opening Session To-day

Canadian Press

Lucerne-in-Quebec, Que., Sept. 22.—The appalling toll of human lives taken annually in automobile accidents along Canadian highways will have the eventual effect that public opinion will demand safety legislation that will perhaps curb the use of motor vehicles, J. P. Bickell, registrar for motor vehicles of Ontario, concluded in an address before the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association, which opened to-day.

"Operators of motor vehicles must awake to the need for great care on the highways," said Mr. Bickell. The automobile, in some ways one of the greatest boons to civilization, is rapidly assuming the position of the greatest menace to civilization, Mr. Bickell declared. "Safety devices have been evolved to compensate for the greater power and superior potential speed of the automobile of to-day, yet accidents continued to mount."

The speaker was of the opinion that the human element remained the greatest factor in the terrific loss of life, that the driver, rather than mechanical defects, is responsible.

THREE A DAY

On Canadian highways, the death rate exceeds three persons a day, said Mr. Bickell, the total of automobile fatalities in Canada in 1930 was 1,289, and the injured reached approximately 40,000 during the year.

Mr. Bickell had definite suggestions to increase safety on Canada's highways. "The need for uniformity in motor vehicle and traffic laws is daily becoming more apparent," he said. "Uniformity in municipal, provincial and, in fact, international traffic laws is essential to any continent-wide effort to make the law an unceasingly-effective instrument in promoting safety on highways."

A driver's license law should make provision for the examination of all applicants, and the examination should at least test the applicant's ability to drive and his knowledge of the rules of the road. A record of traffic infractions and culpability in accidents should also be provided for every automobile driver, he emphasized. Such a system would permit of a scheme of demerits for automobile insurance premiums, with the more skilful drivers reaping the benefit of lower premiums, while others would pay more, Mr. Bickell concluded.

FUTILE TO PUT INDIA ON GOLD STANDARD BASIS

In Interest of India to Restore Power of Silver, Says Senator Key Pittman

Contends Britain Should Accept Hoover's Invitation to Discuss Silver in Conference

Reno, Nevada, Sept. 22.—Senator Key Pittman told a large audience here yesterday evening that the sudden temporary suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain made it "appear obvious that the futile effort of the British Government of India to place that country on a gold bullion standard basis must be abandoned."

Senator Pittman said that it was "impossible to conceive" that the British Government would decline longer to accept an invitation from President Hoover to participate in an international conference on the silver question."

Since the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain," he said, "it must appear obvious that the futile effort of the British Government of India to place that country on a gold bullion standard basis must be abandoned. In abandoning such a policy India will, of course, abandon the practice of melting up silver rupee coins and disposing of the metal as bullion. It is now undoubtedly to the interest of Great Britain and India to restore the price and purchasing power of silver.

Great Britain cannot obtain gold but she can obtain silver from India. Great Britain on a silver standard would have an advantage over the United States and other standard countries. This is another reason why our own government must assist in raising the price of silver, restoring its purchasing power and thus raising its exchange value with gold.

"There seems to be no justifiable excuse for longer delay and inaction in this vital matter. In the face of universal stagnation of trade at a time when gold is frozen and failing to perform its function as a medium of trade and commerce, in this day of useless production, unsaleable products, unemployment, poverty and starvation, it is almost criminal to fiddle while the world burns."

ITALY PUTS CURB ON STERLING SALES

Associated Press

Rome, Sept. 22—The Bank of Italy, after its officials had conferred with the ministry of finance, to-day passed on what amounts to an order that all banks and brokers cease exchange speculation, refrain from sterling transactions and retain all the pounds they hold.

This is to be followed as a friendly and at the same time sane policy. Italy, because of the rigid deflation when the lira was stabilized, decreased her foreign holdings and the Bank of Italy has scarcely $50,000,000 worth of sterling.

Many new highways are to be opened in Colombia this year.

Rev. J. C. Switzer was this morning elected chairman of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada at the annual meeting held at the Metropolitan Church. The Presbytery also approved a call from the Centennial United Church to Rev. Mr. Switzer, who has been the pastor of Wilkinson Road and Garden City church since July, 1930. Mr. Switzer will transfer to Centennial Church on November 1, when Rev. G. C. E. Pringle will retire because of ill-health.

The Presbytery re-elected Rev. Thomas Keyworth of Sidney as secretary.

EXPRESS REGRETS

The Presbytery dealt with the resignation of Rev. Mr. Pringle from Centennial Church and his request for long leave of absence. In feeling terms many of the delegates paid tribute to the value of Mr. Pringle's services to the United Church in general and the excellent results which had marked his pastorate at Centennial Church.

The call from Centennial Church to Rev. Mr. Switzer was then presented by W. M. Scott, Mr. Switzer stated he was willing to accept the call if Wilkinson Road did not object. Rev. W. P. McHaffie, on behalf of that congregation, raised not objection, and the call was sustained.

Wilkinson Road and Garden City Churches will be given time to decide whether they will jointly call a minister or ask the Presbytery to make an appointment.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

The work of the Religious Education Council was explained by Rev. Mr. Lees and Rev. E. R. MacLean, of Vancouver, whose comments as to the value of the work were sustained by Rev. Bruce Gray.

Rev. Mr. Lees explained the inter-denominational summer vacation school held in Victoria and the pioneer vacation school held at Campbell River this summer. Both had achieved excellent results, he reported.

Rev. Mr. Lees also appealed for a strong temperance campaign during October in all churches, to terminate with a "sign the pledge" campaign.

This afternoon the Presbytery will receive reports from committees on home missions, the pensions fund and evangelical and social service work.

CONSTERNATION IS CAUSED IN CHILE

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 22—Considerable consternation in Santiago financial circles yesterday followed upon the decision of Great Britain to suspend the gold standard.

The Chilean peso is based on the British sixpence and about half of the Banco Central's gold reserve abroad in sterling and deposited in London. The reserve may be changed into dollars and transferred to New York.

The value of the Chilean peso is fixed by law at par.

NATIONAL CABINET OF NEW ZEALAND IN OFFICE TO-DAY

FIVE ORIGINALS

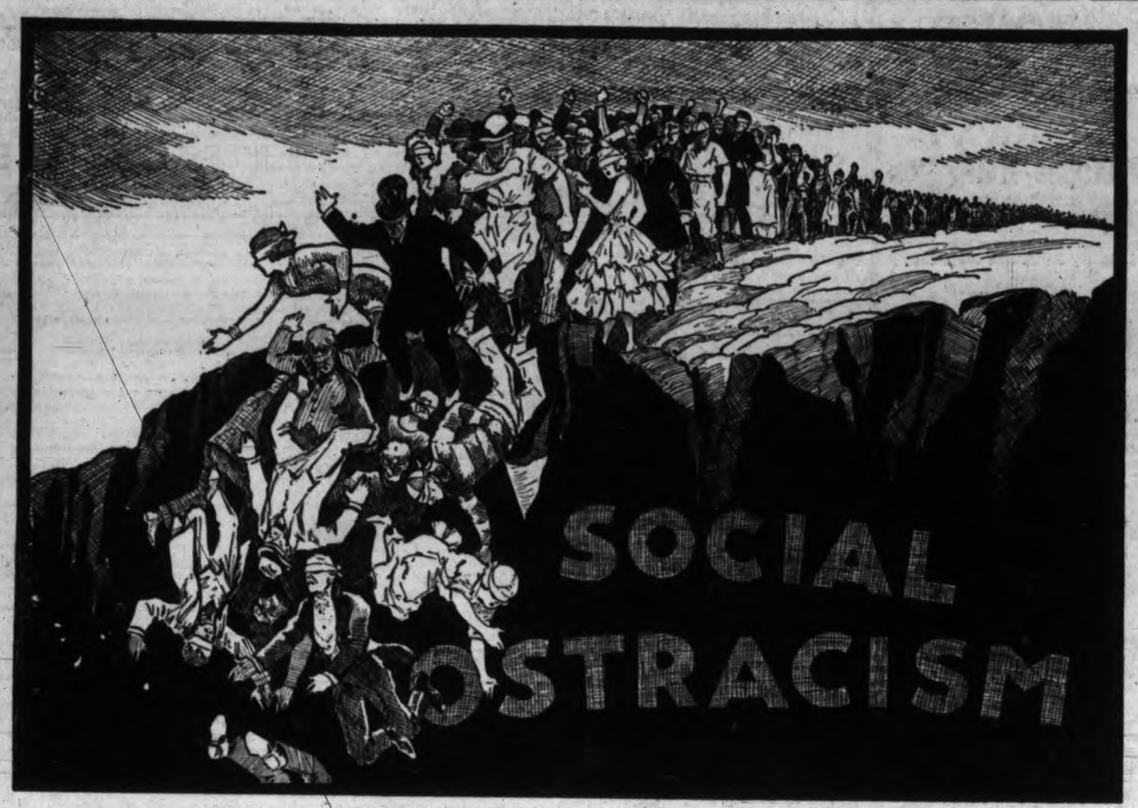
Messrs. Rensom, Masters, Cobbe, Nagata and, of course, Prime Minister Forbes, were members of the United Party Government which went into office in 1929.

Rt. Hon. J. G. Coates was former prime minister and in his last referred party cabinet Downie Stewart was finance minister and Mr. Young was also a member. The other two referred party members of the new cabinet have been supporters in the house, Mr. Coates, Mr. Jones being chairman of the meat board.

FOLLOW BRITAIN'S LEAD

The Dominion is following Britain's lead throughout. The new cabinet shows a reduction of three members against the last one. The Labor party has nineteen members in a House of eighty, and is opposed to the formation of the National Government and is disappointed at the postponement of the general election originally expected next month.

After the new ministry was announced to-day the House adjourned for ten days, presumably to enable the new ministry to draw up a complete plan for national rehabilitation.



THE PIT WE ALL FALL INTO

WE STAND on the brink of it and do not realize it is there.

We fall into it but do not know that we have fallen.

Or, if we do know, we ponder dumbly as to the cause.

The pit is social ostracism.

And the thing that pushes us in is an insidious thing. In the medical world they call it halitosis. In blunt terms, it is bad breath. Under any name, it is an unpardonable offense in social and business life.

The insidious thing about halitosis is that you yourself never know when you have it—and your best friend won't tell you. It is the last thing we suspect ourselves of having—but it ought to be the first.

No One is Immune

For, every day in normal mouths, conditions capable of causing halitosis may and do arise.

Its commoner causes are fermenting food particles skipped by the tooth brush, decaying teeth, artificial teeth, colds, catarrh, slight infections of nose, mouth or throat, pyorrhea, stomach derangements caused by excesses of eating and—should we say it?—of drinking.

The one way to put yourself on the polite and acceptable side is to rinse the mouth with undiluted Listerine. Every night and morning. And between times before meeting others. It leaves the mouth clean, sweet, and healthy.

Strikes at Cause of Odors

Because of its germicidal* power, Listerine first strikes at fermentation and infection, the cause of odors; then destroys the odors themselves. It is one of the swiftest deodorants known. Even difficult odors, like those of onion and fish, yield to it quickly.

There is no point in risking social disfavor when Listerine will put you so promptly on the right side. Keep a bottle handy in home and office. Carry one when you travel. Lambert Pharmacal Company, Toronto, Ontario.

Hinchliffe Defends Policy On Schools

Minister of Education, Before Chilliwack Convention, Claims Some School Districts Not Playing the Game; Says If Law Enforced There Would Be Reduction in Education Costs; School Holiday Question Taken Up

Canadian Press

Chilliwack, Sept. 22—Stating that some school districts of British Columbia were not playing the game with the government, and that if he were to enforce the law to the letter there would be a considerable reduction in the cost of education in the province, Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, made a vigorous defence of his department before the British Columbia school trustees in convention here yesterday evening.

In quoting instances where certain districts have been adopting unfair tactics to secure a school, the minister said "we must have law. One law states no school district can be formed until there are at least ten children of school age. I have come across a community which said they have the necessary number and when the inspectator checked up he finds there are only six. This is put right by the district applying, by stating that a sister of the teacher will be arriving in the district shortly with her four children and would bring the number to the required ten. But in a few days the sister will have gone home again taking her children with her and the number is reduced to the original six."

The minister also stated he had even seen an advertisement in the papers seeking a teacher with three or four children.

"Why is this done?" he asked.

"Simply because that particular district may be continued, which is against the law."

Mr. Hinchliffe quoted another case where a certain district has been getting special grants for years and are still asking for extra on the plea of teaching so many children whose parents pay no taxes.

On looking over their accounts he said the district had added $900 over and above the amount granted by the government and still they urged greater assistance.

TRYING POSITION

It is a trying position for me when school boards ask for special grants when they have the power to collect certain fees from parents who pay no taxes," he declared.

In opening his address, the minister assured the delegates he fully realized the work school trustees were trying to do and of the great difficulties they have to face.

"I am trying to give to you credit for earnestness and honesty of purpose and I ask you to extend the same credit for doing my best and if we each make allowance for the other, we shall get on well," he said.

Continuing, he stated he was in a peculiar position so no matter what he did or did not do, he couldn't please everyone.

I have been referred to in nice terms and I have been told I am the worst Minister of Education the province ever had, but I don't care for your approbation. I have been condemned but it doesn't affect me. If my opponents knew as much as I know of the inside workings of the department they might have a very different opinion of myself."

Referring to the programme of resolutions he said the first two looked good but the remainder asked the government to do the rest.

He again touched on character building of the child by stating it was moulded in the home and before the child had started school, and that the work trustees were doing was only a very small part of its education.

HOLIDAY STEALING

Mr. Hinchliffe then said he felt very hurt by being accused of stealing two weeks of the children's summer holidays.

"I haven't stolen the children's holiday," he said, "I have only carried out the wishes of your association passed by resolutions during the past five years, and who do you think these resolutions were sponsored by?" asked the minister, "Burnaby" came the reply from various parts of the floor. "Yes, from Burnaby," repeated Mr. Hinchliffe.

"Your record for 1925, before I was Minister of Education, shows a resolution was submitted from Burnaby that in the opinion of the British Columbia trustees the summer holidays should be reduced to two clear months. In 1926 the same resolution was passed and in 1927 the same thing happened and still again in 1928. I now ask you trustees to accept the blame for shorter holidays," he stated.

Referring to the employment of married women as teachers, whose husbands are in employment, Mr. Hinchliffe called on the delegates to have such a condition removed at the present convention.

"I am absolutely unable to move in the matter. You appoint the teachers, not me," he added.

Referring to the use of school busses, Mr. Hinchliffe declared this had nothing to do with his department. When they are used the police have the power to see they are kept in good repair and are safe. There are some school districts who take great care to have the busses in good condition and have spared no expense to keep them safe for the use of pupils, while others are in a bad way, he said. "It is a responsibility of the government and not the Department of Education. It is a case where the police must act."

BUCHANAN RIGHT

In discussing Professor D. Buchanan's address of the afternoon regarding government scholarships, he declared the professor was absolutely right in his remarks.

"I am not much interested in the sons and daughters of wealthy men, they can look after themselves. I am not interested in the lazy and unambitious children of the wealthy either, but I am interested in the children of the poorer people and it is for these I am desirous of assisting through scholarships.

"Professor Buchanan was right when he said every child should have an opportunity for higher education and it was for this purpose I acted. What I did was to forward applications to a committee of the University of British Columbia and for them to make the final decision as to who should enter the university," he informed the delegates.

So far, Mr. Hinchliffe said, seventy such scholarships have been awarded.

Mr. Hinchliffe touched briefly on teacher training.

"What are we going to do about it," he asked. "I have been condemned because I proposed limiting this at the university and normal schools. Why should the University of British Columbia take more than they can accommodate. There is no sense in it," he declared.

At the two normal schools this year he stated 450 had taken out teaching certificates but that only half of them be employed.

"Further training at normal schools needs careful consideration and if anything is to be done about it, the time is the present and I am anxious to hear how you deal with the resolution on this question."

In closing, Mr. Hinchliffe hoped the convention would not think he had tried to influence them in any of their decisions but that he had to take up some of their proposed resolutions because they appeared to be too one-sided.

At the conclusion of his address the minister was accorded a vote of thanks.

CHURCH TO AID DISTRESSED AREAS

Canadian Press

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Maintenance on the present basis of the work in the west promoted by the Presbyterian Church in Canada was decided upon at a meeting here of the executive of the church's general board of missions. It was reported to the executive that no work had been abandoned, no praeching station closed and no preachers withdrawn due to the abnormal situation in parts of the west.

The executive decided to make a special appeal to the entire church for financial aid to meet the urgent need in the distressed western areas. A special committee was appointed to carry out the programme outlined.

ONTARIO HAS GOOD CORN CROP

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Ontario farmers have harvested one of the best corn crops in years, according to the weekly report issued by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Silo filling is now general. The corn this year proved to be exceptionally well-matured.

Good yields of potatoes of high quality have been reported from several counties, among them Dufferin.

ALBERTA WHEAT AVERAGE

Edmonton, Sept. 22.—Estimating a wheat average for this province of 16½ bushels per acre, a general crop report issued by the Alberta Wheat Pool places the Edmonton district above all sections with an average of twenty-eight bushels to the acre.

A feature of the report is the striking increase in coarse grains throughout Alberta with oats almost treble the figure of three years ago. The barley increase is nearly doubled. The province maintains a wheat production but slightly under that of 1930 with an estimated return of more than 118,000,000 this year as compared with slightly less than 125,000,000 a year ago.

IOWA FARMERS ARE AROUSED; TROOPS SENT

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 22.—Orders were issued yesterday evening by Adjutant-General W. H. Bailey for the mobilization of between 1,500 and 2,000 troops, who will be sent to Cedar County where farmers resisted veterinarians' attempts to test cattle for tuberculosis.

The adjutant-general's action came after a sheriff's force of sixty-five men t -day was prevented by a band of more than 200 aroused farmers from testing cattle at the farm of Jacob Lenker, near Tipton, Iowa.

Cigarettes Now On Decrease, But Loose Tobacco Up

New York, Sept. 22.—Cigarette output in August in the United States was 9,520,872,926, against 10,579,074,956 in August, 1930. The decrease is blamed on general hard times conditions.

At the same time, while cigarettes were dropping, manufactured loose smoking tobacco increased to 28,750,965 pounds for the month, against 26,118,432 pounds in the same month a year ago, as a result of the return of many smokers to the cheaper habit of rolling their own.

Cigar output continues to fall, reaching the low level of 463,255,644 last month, against 517,199,767 a year ago.

WHAT THE BUTTER DUTY IS COSTING

NO TIME SHOULD BE LOST BY THE government at Ottawa in commencing negotiations with the new co-operative administration of New Zealand in the interests of trade between the two Dominions. Trade statistics just issued from Ottawa show that, taking all products together, the value of New Zealand's imports from this country for the first six months of this year was only a little more than one-third the value of her purchases from us in the corresponding period of 1930, when the old trading arrangement was in operation.

Here is the story: New Zealand's imports of Canadian-manufactured passenger motor vehicles dropped in these six months by about $2,500,000, and tires $700,000, due to New Zealand's tariff increases as against this Dominion. Imports of Canadian hardware fell off $300,000; chassis for trucks, $200,000; iron and steel bars, bolts and rods, $150,000; canned fish, $150,000; rubber boots, $150,000; rubber and fabric shoes, $100,000; lorries, trucks, vans and buses, $125,000; newsprint, $125,000; wheat, $100,000; rough sawn timber, $75,000; electric ranges, $70,000; hosiery, $65,000; pipes, all kinds, $60,000; electric meters, $50,000; batteries and cells, $50,000; flour, $50,000; confectionery, $50,000; plain fencing wire, $50,000.

Since the end of the period covered by these details, of course, matters have become much worse, because on June 2, New Zealand, provoked by this Dominion's new tariffs, largely on account of the eight cent duty on butter imposed last year, put practically all Canadian goods on the general or high tariff.

The tariff war between Canada and New Zealand began over butter. Mr. Bennett painted the picture of this country's dairy industry dying because of competition from New Zealand. But he told the dairymen if he were elected, he would put the tariff up to eight cents and insure them fifty and even sixty-cent butter. Not a pound of New Zealand butter is coming into Canada—and the dairymen are getting about twenty cents a pound for their product! But we get a better idea of our loss from a study of the details noted above.

STILL AT THE HELM

FOR SOME EXTRAORDINARY REASON several newspapers in this country that developed an unexplainable antipathy to the late Labor government in Great Britain are now especially jubilant over the turn of events which has resulted in a National government, the implication being that the country is well rid of the MacDonald regime, as it would be well rid of the plague.

It is difficult to understand the attitude of these newspapers. Their particular targets, of course, have been the two principal ministers of the late ministry—Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Snowden. But the two principal ministers of the Labor government are the principal ministers of the National government. Mr. MacDonald is Prime Minister—not Mr. Baldwin, not Mr. Lloyd George or Sir Herbert Samuel. Mr. Snowden is Chancellor of the Exchequer—a position second in importance only to that of the Premier—not Sir Austen Chamberlain or an eligible Liberal. So the country really is not rid of the MacDonald regime. It is not rid of it because Mr. Baldwin and Sir Herbert Samuel, for the Conservative and Liberal parties respectively, insisted that the present and former Prime Minister and the present and former Chancellor of the Exchequer were the two men eminently fitted to continue to discharge the duties of their important positions in the hour of the country's crisis. And, since we now know that the bankers and the economists have been a power behind the scene, it is safe to assume that they, too, are quite satisfied with the choice.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Snowden have parted company with many of their former colleagues. They stood their ground, burned their political boats—without throwing their political ideals into the flames—because they realized that a national emergency demanded national treatment. But it is still a government dominated to a very considerable extent by the same men who dominated, until the rupture, the late government.

THE CONSTANT REVOLT

RETIRING AFTER THIRTY YEARS OF service as dean of men at the University of Illinois, Thomas Arkle Clark casts a thoughtful glance back over the years and concludes that young people, taken by and large, are just about what they always were.

"Young people have not changed fundamentally in thirty years," he says. "They are all going to the same places, only their ways lie over hard roads, in automobiles, or in airplanes, and to the accompaniment of radios.

"The economic and social conditions are different, but not the psychology of youth. There are just as many serious-minded students and just as many frivolous ones as thirty years ago."

All this sounds logical enough, but it is vaguely disappointing. A man who has kept a watchful eye on university students for over a quarter of a century ought to have something to say about the revolt of youth, or the way in which the younger generation is going to perdition. We expect it of him. It is an old custom.

Still, the gentleman probably knows what he is talking about; and his summing-up makes one wonder if this whole "youth problem" is not one of those perennial problems that never get solved, never get worse and never lead to anything in particular.

It is the function of youth to be in revolt, to be disrespectful of its elders, to do things that the generation just ahead thinks scandalous. Every "younger generation," since the days of the Pharaohs, probably, has been that way. This, indeed, is one unchanging thing in a changing world.

Indeed, we older ones who get shocked by the doings of the youngsters—were not we ourselves, a few years ago, shocking our own elders? And were not they, in turn, doing the same thing a few decades before? All of these revolts that we and our fathers and our grandfathers led—where are they now? Living on in the youth of to-day, perhaps—otherwise, non-existent.

The fact is both comforting and saddening. Youth is not going to upset the applecart. It will grow up, presently, get disillusioned, and raise its own hands over the antics of its children. It always has, and it always will.

IVAN'S DILEMMA

IT IS ONE THING TO ERECT IMPOSING factories and engage experts to install machinery, but quite another thing to operate such establishments efficiently. The sponsors of Russia's much-advertised Five-Year Plan evidently are finding this out. American mechanics have done their part of the job. Soviet workers are puzzled by the intricate machines they are expected to run. So the gentlemen who are in control of affairs at Moscow are importing a few thousand experts from the United States to help them out. It is said 6,000 of such workers are about to leave or already have left capitalistic America for communist Russia to give Ivan a few more tips.

We get an insight into what is going on from Mr. Eliot Wadsworth, former assistant secretary of the United States treasury, and now a member of a big engineering firm, who has just returned from Russia with grave doubt about the success of that country's Five-Year Plan. Here are some of his comments:

Production appears to be far below expectation.

One large new factory which I visited was scheduled to begin production a year ago. There were 15,000 men and women working in the plant, some on construction, some being taught to run machines, others running machines, but no product was forthcoming.

It looked rather chaotic, and no prediction was made as to when production would start. An official frankly said that some American experts would be very welcome.

It will not do, of course, to write Russia's ambitious scheme off as a negligible factor in future international competition in manufactured products. But it seems fairly safe to suggest that by the time the world has recovered, or partially recovered, from its post-war troubles, Russia quite probably will be back in the capitalistic class of nation for the reason that her experiment did not work out successfully. She already has had to confess that she can not do without the capital and skill capitalistic countries are able to provide.

Sir Oswald Mosley seems to have had a rough time at his meeting on Glasgow Green on Sunday night. He was struck on the back of the head by a stone; but the part of the dispatch which intrigues us is that which reports three others of the party occupying the platform receiving slight razor cuts. Of course, there has been considerable speculation upon the ultimate destination of old razor blades; but nobody accused Glasgow of hoarding them.

The morning paper tells us it is conceivable that if Mr. Bennett's proposal to the Imperial Conference of a reciprocal trade agreement had not been opposed by the late Labor government of Great Britain, there would have been no need of any temporary abandonment of the gold standard, because the position of Britain's trade would have developed so greatly that it is wholly likely there would have been no monetary crisis. The absurdity of the suggestion, of course, needs no emphasis. The other day, incidentally, our contemporary blamed the Canadian National Railways for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's decision to close down its shops. But it is now Mr. Bennett's turn to pray to high heaven that he be protected from some of his friends. Mr. Beatty probably already has done so.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TO KILL ANTS

The London Sunday Times

The curator of the Royal Botanic Gardens, Regent's Park, speaking with the authority of sixty years' acquaintance with insect pests, said that the only method which was successful in destroying ants was to pour boiling water over their nests.

DO THE THING THOROUGHLY

The Brooklyn Eagle

If the Farm Board can directly or indirectly force farmers to destroy cotton, why shouldn't the Treasury destroy some of the surplus gold it holds? Why shouldn't manufacturers be asked to destroy their surplus products? Why not get rid of surplus workers by ploughing them under.

EXTENDING POLICE RADIO

The Edmonton Journal

Announcement by the commissioner that the A.P.P. detachments in Peace River and Grande Prairie are to be equipped at once with short wave radio sending and receiving apparatus, indicates that full use is to be made of this aid to police work. Even more interesting is the revelation that many members of the force, especially those serving in the more distant detachments, are equipping themselves with short wave receivers and learning all about their use.

When the new stations are opened there will be five broadcasting units in operation in the provincial police organization, extending from Lethbridge in the south to Peace River in the north. The network, there is no doubt, will grow considerably in future. Short wave receiving sets, one imagines, will be installed on all police patrol cars before long.

There is nothing more conducive to efficient police work than the rapid spread of information. While it was not necessary to make use of radio in a recent case, the capture of two bandits and the shooting of a third south of Calgary not so long ago, was a demonstration of this truth. Within a matter of a very few minutes after the alarm was turned in to the police, detachments along the probable line of flight had been notified. The police, as a result, were able to intercept the fleeing men. Had there been a half-hour delay, the bandits might have passed the danger point and then it would have been a stern chase, and these, on land as well as at sea, prove too often to be long drawn out affairs.

Loose Ends

Mushrooms in the halls of government — government in according to the modern method — and government in the conservation of watersheds.

By H. B. W.

By H. B. W.

AT VARIOUS times I have witnessed some funny spectacles in the Parliament Buildings, and many of them were not intended to be. But these occurrences were usually within the Legislative Chamber, while the curious sight which I witnessed to-day was outside, in the corridor. In the corridor behind the Legislative Chamber, then, I suddenly beheld a little gentleman with a solemn face holding a single mushroom in front of him and walking along as fast as he could. I could not make out whether he was following the mushroom, as a donkey pursues a carrot suspended before him, or whether he imagined that the mushroom would protect like an umbrella, though it was hardly large enough for that. In any case, I concluded that the poor fellow was not quite right and, supposing that he was merely a member of the Legislature, returning to haunt the scene of the crime, I was about to go when he stopped me.

* * *

HE SAID he was taking his mushroom to the Department of Agriculture and, apparently had carted it for an hour or more all over the buildings, holding it delicately between two fingers. In his vain search for the Department of Agriculture he had consumed so much time, indeed, that the mushroom was getting rather weak and I doubted that it could live through the entire journey. But what I wanted to hand on to the public in these hard times was the valuable information imparted to me by this gentleman who, far from being a member of the Legislature, was a mushroom fancier of talent and experience. What he told me was that the people of this country have failed utterly to take advantage of the mushroom, nature's most delicate food. The only mushroom eaten here, he asserted, is the familiar one with the pink underside and the little collar around the stem. Actually there are hundreds of edible varieties and any which wears a white collar is quite respectable—a rule which does not always apply in higher spheres of life.

* * *

THE ONE HE had wore a white collar but its underside was quite white also. I should have taken it for a toadstool any time. On the contrary, he assured me that, after demonstrating it to the Department of Agriculture he would eat it — along with divers puffballs and other strange growths which are generally regarded as poisonous. He added that if one did happen to make a mistake, one would probably die within half an hour in great agony. But he said that if I would take to gathering mushrooms of the rarer sort he would be glad to attend the inquest and give expert testimony in case I blundered. And in case you require his services for a similar purpose, I could give you his address. I mean, in these hard times and all, the gathering of mushrooms has big possibilities and it does not matter much whether you blunder or not.

* * *

THE HIGHWAY COMMISSION proposed by the municipalities of British Columbia is obviously a sound idea. The only thing which could possibly prevent its inauguration is party politics and party politicians and people who want to get special privileges. But for them we should have had a highway commission long ago. Everybody knows, and no one better than the fine body of engineers who actually build the roads under orders from politicians, that the road programme of British Columbia has been bedeviled with politics for years, that unnecessary work has been done to win elections and unfriendly districts penalized for their political views.

* * *

NEVERTHELESS, the commission proposal has further implications. It is symptomatic of the condition of of democratic government the world over to-day. We seem to be reaching a point in all democratic countries where we are afraid to trust our governments with the vital matters of government. We will not trust them to handle transportation which, here and in the United States, is under commissions. We will not trust them to handle the liquor business which, theoretically at least, is under commissions all over Canada. We will not trust them to handle workmen's compensation, or labor laws. No doubt a majority of British Columbians want to take highway administration away from them and everybody recognizes the need of a public utilities commission.

* * *

AT THIS RATE we shall eventually reach the point where elected governments have only one function—to entertain distinguished visitors and appoint commissions which will govern the country. This would be one way of escaping the evils of party politics, but it is by no means an original idea. That was the basic plan of the United States constitution — a college of electors was to be chosen at large to meet and appoint the best man possible as President, and he was to run the country with the impartiality of a commission. But, unhappily, before anyone realized what was happening, the college of electors became mere rubber stamps, the electors ran for election as the supporters of one Presidential candidate or another, and soon the nominee of a party, and not necessarily the best man, inevitably became President. If we go on with commissions some day the competition will not be for election to the government but to some of the more important commissions. Still, we can only do what seems best at the time, and everything we do will have to be changed later on anyway. And at the moment a highway commission is obviously wise, but the great thing is to get the right commission, to prevent politics working secretly behind a commission instead of openly, as it works now.

* * *

A GENTLEMAN who probably is in as good a position to know about these things as anyone else, who, through his high official position, has had more experience in them than most men in British Columbia, came to me to-day and said I ought to say something about the desolation of Victoria's watershed near Goldstream. I protested that I knew nothing of watersheds and, in view of its splendid record in such things as parks administration and the imprisonment of wild animals, I was prepared to trust the watershed to the city government. "Well," said this gentleman who, you should know, is an expert in forestry and has a great deal to do with the administration of all British Columbia's forests, "the public has no idea of what is going on up around Goldstream. Not one man in ten thousand has the remotest notion of the way they are logging off the watershed. When I read in the newspaper that it was to be logged, I presumed that some of the older mature trees would be removed, and that is what the public thought. But I went out there the other day and what I found absolutely staggered me. I found that they are logging the Goldstream watershed precisely as they logged the Cowichan Lake country. You know what that is like—absolute desolation, not a tree standing, hillsides bare and brown. That is what is happening to our Goldstream watershed, and the public ought to know it. I suppose it is too late to prevent this outrage at Goldstream but what you ought to do is to arouse public opinion to save the Sooke watershed from similar ruin."

* * *

I TOLD THIS gentleman that the City Council doubtless had employed experts to advise it. My informant, who is also an expert, replied that no one who knew anything of water conservation would believe that timber was not necessary for a watershed. "Why, up in the Sooke Hills," he said, "I have seen snow in the hollows until May. It would never lie there without timber to protect it. What is happening is that to make a few dollars, which will be quickly squandered, we are throwing away a priceless asset, and it is the most serious thing I have ever seen in my experience." I told him I could do nothing. I assured him the City Council would never pay any attention to me, but inwardly I agreed with him though I have not seen the desolation of the watershed that, by the law of averages in government, it was pretty certain that what the city was doing with its watershed was wrong. It was also incredible, which made it, in a matter of government, all the more likely.

UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—In answer to John Dean's letter on unemployment, Mr. Dean appears to lose sight of the fact, that the true cause of the present economic crisis is undoubtedly unearned income, and the present unintelligent management of the currency. The only scientific solution of the problem is, as I have already pointed out, to adapt the amount of money in circulation to the amount of goods produced, and in this way, to stabilize the general level of prices. It appears the capitalistic system can no more be maintained; the technic—the production power—needs a better servant than a motor that comes to a standstill every now and then. The way out, to communism, is unacceptable, for every man loving freedom and personal independence. But unless free economy is resorted to the depressions will make the people revolt against the present system and drown it in state beaucratism—communism. Free economy is the shining way out. Interest is not only an exploiter, it makes the wealth of a nation—the debt of a nation, and, what is worse, preventing man from producing all the wealth for which Nature supplies him with the raw materials. Free economy is an economic order based on competition and private enterprise, but eliminating the social injustice of unearned income. METHOD.

LABOR'S WAY OUT

To the Editor:—"Method," the advocate for Gesell, seems to be under the impression that if money is but circulated freely all would be well. The troubles of society appear to him to be due to a tightness of money. It is difficult to get. But the appearance is deceptive. As well say that the more street cars the company put on the streets, the more passengers there would be. One clearly sees the absurdity of the latter claim, but not so easily the equal absurdity of the former one. As a matter of fact, money is not hard to obtain, provided the banks are assured of a safe, even though small, return on their investment. Furthermore; assuming for one moment that Gessell is correct, and the forced circulation of money without interest would rectify matters, who is to be the instrument to enforce such a decree? Are not governments but the mouthpieces of the vested interests? Recent incidents in England point to that conclusion. Are they, then, to be expected to cut their own throats? Obviously not, and yet a subject class does not, and cannot make the laws. It must first of all raise itself to the status of ruling class. This is the ultimate aim of the political movement of Labor. As for the cause of society's dilemma, I recommend a study of the Marxian theory of surplus value. No other explanation holds water. And then, my friend, you will see that you propose to take as much trouble to trim the whiskers of a tiger, as it does to destroy the obnoxious beast. No monkeying with the yardstick, no tinkering with the medium of exchange, is going to reach the root of the matter. Labor is exploited at the point of production, ON the job; not elsewhere. Labor surrenders to capital all it produces. Capital returns sufficient to provide for a renewal of the depleted energy. Till that is seen by the workers, there is no hope for better times of a permanent nature.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES SEPTEMBER 22, 1906

(From the Times Files)

The steamer, City of Seattle, struck on the rocks off Trial Island on Wednesday morning, was floated clear yesterday afternoon. After being lightened of her cargo the vessel rose with the incoming tide and with the aid of the Salvor, Pilot and Pioneer, and also with the use of her own power, the ship slid easily into the water and proceeded at once to the Outer Wharf, followed by the assisting steamers.

* * *

A mishap has overtaken the viceregal party, which left here on the steamer Thistle on Wednesday morning on a fishing trip and hunting excursion to Campbell River and other points along the coast of Vancouver Island and Mainland. News has been brought by the steamer Princess May, which arrived here from Skagway and the Skeena River this morning, that the Thistle on Thursday was high and dry at the mouth of Nimpkish River, opposite Alert Bay, on the eastern coast of this Island.

A large party of members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who have been attending the annual convention of the organization at Winnipeg, will arrive in the city on Monday afternoon on the C.P.R. steamer Princess Victoria.

Victoria's exhibition opens next Tuesday and continues until Saturday night. The outlook is exceedingly bright and members of the executive of the British Columbia Agricultural Association expressed themselves as perfectly confident of its success.

TROUBLE IN THE EAST

To the Editor:—The present trouble in Manchuria, even if it does not reach the acute stage as an international crisis, may likely raise the question whether Manchuria belongs to China or is a self-governing country.

Some centuries ago the ruling House of Manchuria subjugated China and ruled the nation as a conquered people, till 1911, when they became a republic under the revolution of Sun Yat Sen.

But, if I remember correctly, no effort was made by China to subdue Manchuria or compel that country to become a part of the Chinese Republic, and it was ruled independently by Chang, an ex-robber chief, whose son still holds the position of despotic Governor of Manchuria.

The deposed Emperor of China is still the rightful heir to Manchuria, and I think Japan may press the assertion that Manchuria does not belong to China, and that the Nanking Government have no right to interfere with the internal affairs of Manchuria.

Chinese, from the military-oppressed and famine-stricken districts—between Nanking and Peking—have been emigrating in large numbers to Manchuria, but whether this has been a natural exodus by the people, from sheer pressure of necessity, or a plan conceived and fostered by the Nanking Government for political purposes, it would be difficult to say. Yet may be important as a contributary cause of the present development of trouble with Japan.

Japan, being hard-pressed by limited territory and a rapidly increasing population, it is very natural that the proximity of a large undeveloped territory should strongly appeal to them, and also as a buffer against Russian aggression from Siberia, it looks valuable, so that Japanese policy in Manchuria must always seem to have some sinister motive to the natives of that country.

To us in Canada, and especially here in British Columbia, this phase of the future problem of provision for surplus populations in Japan and China, should be studied with keen interest, for it may yet prove to be our most difficult national question to solve, and our present policy, or lack of policy, will be reflected in the future heritage bequeathed by this generation to Canada. CALENDAR REFORM

To the Editor:—Next month the Communication and Transit Section of the League of Nations will meet to decide the question of calendar reform. There seems to be little knowledge of what the consequences would be if a "blank-day" plan succeeds—and it is very likely it will unless immediate and strong protest is made.

The scheme receiving the most propaganda is the Cotsworth-Eastman thirteen-month plan. Each month would have twenty-eight days of four weeks, which totals one day less than the solar year. This day would be entirely ignored, not recognized either in the year, months or weeks, which would, of course, break the historical and biblical seven-day weekly cycle, causing endless trouble—percution in fact—for conscientous observers of the weekly holy day.

The doubt is everywhere being insinuated that the week is a comparatively recent innovation of man, but let the undoubted authority of the Encyclopedia Britannica refute this theory: "The week is a period of seven days, having no reference whatever to the celestial motions—a circumstance to which it owes its unalterable uniformity . . . it has been employed from time immemorial in almost all Eastern countries; and it forms neither an aliquot part of the year nor of the lunar month, those who reject the Mosaic recital will be at a loss, as Delambre remarks, to assign it to an origin having much semblance of probability."—Art, "Calendar," page 968, 11th edition.

Just what would happen to those who are thus conscientious if a "blank-day" plan succeeds? The great majority would be practically ostracized from society, unable to obtain work, as the true Sabbath would constantly be wandering in Cotsworth's "skip-a-day" calendar. The weekly holy day is the most cherished of all institutions in every sect and creed. Russia saw that and abolished the week, allow it to be broken in the rest of the world for the sake of "efficiency," and little regard will be paid to any religious or moral requirement, as is the case in the Soviet Union today. Who would want a world which effectively banished most of those who value conscience above temporal matters? Civilization could not last without them. Can employers expect to gain by the loss of all conscientious workers?

These estimable citizens would also lose voting rights on election days which conflicted with their rest days.

Adults are not the only ones who would suffer; children from the homes of religious parents would be withheld from school on the true Sabbath and the real Sunday, with consequent prosecution by the government. If it was arranged for these children to be free on the above days, the loss of one or two days at school each week would be very detrimental to their education.

Occasionally one hears the argument that one day in seven is sufficient; that it does not matter which day is observed as long as one-seventh of the week is held sacred. This is a most inconsistent view. Why is not one day in six, eight or ten just as good? Where is the only proof that one day in each seven is to be held sacred but in the law of God? And does not the Fourth Commandment say, "the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, thy God?" Who has the authority to substitute any day for the specific day God instituted as the memorial of creation—the seventh day? Besides, this theory is negative if used to support the proposed calendar change, for it would give one day in eight once each year and twice in each leap year.

To prevent the confusion that would result if the new calendar succeeds, a petition is being circulated to protest to the League against any "blank-day" plan; there are only seven days left in which those who have not signed may do so. If your readers believe that Christ's rule, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," is for the highest welfare of mankind, those who have not signed the petition will be instant in doing so this week. The petiton may be signed at 1819 Douglas Street, one half block north of the Hudson's Bay store.

It is at least significant that the two institutions Jehovah ordained in the Garden of Eden—the week and marriage—are being disregarded as of little value in these turbulent days. It is interesting to note that in the earth made new there will be a twelve-month calendar, with every seventh day the Sabbath of the Lord (Rev. xxii 1; Isaiah lxvi 22-23).

TWO OPERATIONS AT 71

A Splendid Recovery

BECAUSE KRUSCHEN HAD KEPT HER BLOOD CLEAN

Within 16 days of being operated on for appendicitis and tonsilitis, this woman was back in her own home. And she is over 71 years of age! When they told her the reason for her remarkable recovery—clean blood—she knew what it was that had helped her. She remembered the daily dose of Kruschen which she had taken for many years. And she knew that one of the things that Kruschen did with absolute thoroughness, was to keep the bloodstream free from impurities. She wrote this soon after her return home:—"I am an old woman over 71. I have taken Kruschen Salts for a number of years, and find they keep me fit and well. I had operations last May for tonsilitis and appendicitis. I was only away a fortnight and two days—which is a very quick recovery for an old woman, I reckon. Clean blood was the reason for it, they told me—and I give Kruschen Salts the credit for that. I recommend them wherever I go."—E. R.

The six salts in Kruschen persuade the organs of elimination—liver, kidneys and bowels—to function as they should—often for the first time in their lives. Instead of being clogged, the intestines are clean and clear. Instead of liver and kidneys being sluggish, they are active and efficient. New, healthy blood goes coursing through the veins—carrying health and strength and energy to every part of the body.

And Kruschen's gentle but positive action is more than merely purifying—it has a direct tonic effect upon your blood, too, and through your bloodstream upon every fibre of your body—fills you with a bracing sense of energetic fitness.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

Glorifying Yourself

If you want to have a lovely face, don't neglect your feet! A great percentage of the frown lines between your eyes and the drooping lines around your mouth are caused, odd as it may appear, by tired, aching feet.

When the first signs of foot-strain appear, whether these signs are pain, stiffness, or just a tired feeling across the arch, give your feet some much-deserved attention. Relax them by spending a little time each day on a bed or couch with your feet propped up on pillows. If your days are so completely filled with other things that you don't have time to do that, then at least take the time to bathe them properly.

Soak your feet in hot water for two minutes, then in very cold water for thirty seconds, then in hot water again, then in cold. Always end with the cold water. Try this two or three times a day and notice how the pain and aching will be relieved in a week or two.

Massage is excellent for your circulation and will relieve pain and strengthen the muscles of your feet. Apply a good foot cream and then massage every inch until the aches disappear.

If you can go to a pedicure once a month, be sure and do so. It will improve your face and complexion as much as your visit to the beauty parlor. But if you cannot afford this weekly visit, or if you haven't time, at least soak the feet in hot and cold water (alternating) and massage them each night

Perfect cleanliness is an essential to beautiful, comfortable feet. Use plenty of soap and water. Scrub them energetically with a little brush or a hard-finish wash cloth. Be sure and rinse off all the soap and dry the feet thoroughly, particularly between the toes. If the skin feels dry after your vigorous rubbing, apply a little foot cream or cold cream and massage it in thoroughly. Dust between your toes with boracic acid powder before you put on clean stockings. It will help to keep them from perspiring and swelling.

Easy to Remove Hair So It Won't Grow Back Coarse and Bristly

New Way So Many Women Are Asking About

A WAY has been found that experts say probably comes closer to solving the arm and leg hair problem for women than anything known before.

It resembles a beauty clay in appearance. You simply spread it on the surface where the hair is to be removed, let it remain a few moments and then rinse off with water.

That is all. Every sign of hair is gone completely. Quite different from the razor and old ways. No coarsened regrowth; no stubble.

You can obtain it now at any toilet goods counter for a few cents. The name is NEET—Cream Hair Remover. Women are flocking to its use.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL MARRIED

Miss Kathleen Slavin Bride of David Robertson of Vancouver

A former Victoria girl was the bride of a wedding which drew a large congregation to St. George's Church, Laurel Street, Vancouver, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, when Rev. C. C. Owen united in marriage Kathleen Patricia, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Frank Slavin and Mrs. Slavin, of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, to Mr. David Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Annan, of Vancouver. For the occasion the church had been tastefully decorated with autumn flowers and greenery by friends of the bride.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Edgar Sunderland, the bride made a charming picture in her gown of primrose taffeta, fashioned with tight-fitting bodice and long flared skirt, a fitted jacket with elbow sleeves and Queen Anne collar, with which she wore a close-fitting hat of white transparent velvet and chenille trimmed with orange blossoms, long white kid gloves and primrose satin shoes. She carried a bouquet of Talliman roses, lily of the valley and fern.

Miss Bona Macmurchie, of Victoria, was the bridesmaid in a light bronze georgette frock in toe length, with matching jacket. With this she wore a black French velvet shepherdess hat trimmed with a celophane bow, black suede shoes and eggshell kid gloves. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums and fern. Little Norma Sunderland, niece of the bride, made an adorable flower girl in her frock of pale green and yellow taffeta with hat, shoes and socks to match. She carried a basket of small gold and bronze chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Alfred Annan.

The wedding marches were played by the church organist and during the signing of the register Mrs. Jack Vincent sang "O Promise Me."

Following the service at the church a largely-attended reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edgar Sunderland, West Thirteenth Avenue, where the young couple were assisted in receiving their guests by Mrs. Slavin, mother of the bride, Mrs. Annan, mother of the groom, and Mrs. Sunderland. Mrs. Slavin was smartly gowned in black lace and black felt hat with ostrich plume. Mrs. Annan wore a handsome ensemble of brown crepe back satin and lace with hat to match. Mrs Sunderland was becomingly attired in a gown of grenadier blue georgette with coatee of transparent velvet and Empress Eugenie hat of velvet with feather mount in matching shade. All wore corsage bouquets of Madame Butterfly roses and maidenhair fern.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with streamers and autumn flowers in yellow, white and bronze, chrysanthemums being used in profusion. In the dining-room the table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, around which was arranged yellow tapers in silver holders and bowls of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Assisting in serving were girl friends of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Annan left on the 11 o'clock boat for a honeymoon in California, the bride traveling in a cinnamon brown velour sports suit with hat and shoes to match and a red fox fur. On their return they will reside at 2127 Seventh Avenue East, Vancouver. The bride and groom are well known in athletic circles here as well as in Vancouver.

PERSONALITY IS HIGHEST PAID ASSET IN GIRLS

Claims Miss Ellen Wilkinson, M.P., Says Adventurous Get on; Plodders "Stay Put"

Canadian Press

London, Sept. 22.—Urging that the chances of advancement for girls in the workaday world are for the adventurous ones, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, M.P., in an article in The News-Chronicle, places emphasis on the fact that personality is the highest paid asset in the modern world. She would have a motto to this effect over the door through which girls go out from their colleges to earn their living, she says.

Quoting "personality is the highest paid asset in the modern world," Miss Wilkinson follows this up by saying: "Of course, it is very unfair that this should be. The girl who has not shone academically may leap far ahead of the conscientious plodders. One of the highest-paid English stage and film stars was a graduate of Birmingham University, and she admits that her academic record was not too bright. In the same way, whatever the unemployment in the worst slump in history, there are always posts for the adventurers; employers will always pay for ideas.

"In the course of my day's work in Parliament I meet head of businesses, editors of papers, big advertisers, and they all want people with ideas. They are willing to pay handsomely for brains that don't want tram lines laid down for them to work on. So my advice to a youngster who feels she has got ideas and a quick-moving brain is: 'Don't waste yourself on a routine job simply because your parents are dazzled with the idea that you will get a pension of $8.50 a week at sixty-five.'

"Of course, the first problem for such a young woman determined to tackle an unusual job is to let the people who matter know it and persuade them to give her a chance. The modest Violet had better get married or teach or type, for in the hard world of competitive careers she will be somewhat crushed.

"If, in the meantime, you have to take a routine job, the silliest thing to do is to sulk and feel yourself buried. A brilliant youngster I know who had not enough money for the university, and had to be content with an ordinary teacher's certificate, concentrated on doing the one thing no one else wanted to do—teaching mentally defective children in a slum school. She brought so many new ideas to that dreary task, interested so many unusual people in her charges, that authorities began to sit up and take notice. Here were brains, personality and 'go'.

"The girl with the grit for money raising can make her own posts and in time command her own salary. An ill-paid organizing job at $10 a week may lead anywhere—a seat in Parliament, a Cabinet Minister, the head of a big business. Three women I know in such positions all started that way. An advertisement for a routine job brings in 500 applications. The worth-while posts are seldom advertised. They are found, or made."

AGED WOMAN IN SORRY PLIGHT

"Too young for the old-age pension and too old to obtain employment, a sixty-nine-year-old woman is appealing to the Victoria Citizens' Unemployed Fund for assistance. She would rather work than accept charity, but no one wants on old woman. She is threatened with ejection from her humble abode unless arrears of rent are paid," an official said to-day.

In twelve months she will be eligible for the old-age pension, but she will not be here to claim it unless help is rendered in the meantime.

Contributions may be sent to headquarters, View and Broad Streets, telephone Garden 1725, or to the city clerk, E. C. Smith, City Hall.

"Our appeal is directed particularly to wealthy citizens, from whom little help has been received," the official concluded.

MUST PRESERVE FAMILY UNIT IN WELFARE WORK

Miss Whitton Reviews Responsibilities of Public and Private Relief Agencies

Business Women Hear Illuminating Address By Head of Canadian Council

"A great lack in the fundamental field of welfare work in Canada is that no attempt is made to adjust or reconcile conditions in a family until that family reaches the breaking point and has to apply to one or other of the public or private agencies for assistance. Under the present economic conditions, a man who, all his life has been honest and thrifty is likely to be faced with an insecurity which may bring his family to a point where they need assistance. We shall lose something eternally valuable if we treat them by a system of relief which was intended to treat destitution in its most degraded and chronic condition."

MUST DIAGNOSE CASES

This was one of the many sound observations made by Miss Charlotte Whitton, executive secretary of the Canadian Council of Child and Family Welfare, in an illuminating address before the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club yesterday evening.

Taking as her subject, "The Basis of Child Protection," Miss Whitton emphasized the need for the preservation of the family unit, which she described as the oldest unit of all, the receptacle of all that we hold permanent, the one form of immortality of which we are certain.

As a doctor diagnoses a physical ailment before proceeding to the remedying of it, so must ailments in the social fabric be diagnosed before attempting to deal with cases needing the assistance of welfare agencies. The needs of a family may be much more greatly spiritual than material, she claimed, and there was a danger, if this point were overlooked, that such a family would, through wrong treatment, tend to a state of dependence and distintegration rather than to a measure of strength and independence.

GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBILITY

Miss Whitton prefaced her remarks with an appeal to the women to study the whole question of social welfare in its relation to responsible government. The tendency was for the responsibility of social welfare to rest more and more with the larger units, such as provincial governments, for all the great body of welfare legislation, the great volume of child protection, public health, care of the insane, came under the provincial governments.

Legally and constitutionally the federal government did not accept responsibility for relief, but conditions to-day were such as had required the intervention of the federal government. It was, however, upon the municipal bodies that the large proportion of the relief work naturally fell.

The speaker dealt at length with the subject of Children's Aid Societies, their organization and place in community life; of the mothers' allowance laws, adoption laws, juvenile court legislation and similiar provincial legislation.

CHAOS IN MUNICIPAL RELIEF

But it was in the field of family work and municipal relief that the greatest chaos existed, for there was no line of demarcation to show where municipal relief ended and private charity entered. Miss Whitton expressed the hope that something would be done to organize the private welfare services to facilitate the efforts of those who prefer to work along private channels rather than in public relief.

"I hope that we in Canada will have the sanity and wisdom to work out our social assistance programme with a view to the rehabilitation and permanent re-establishment of the family unit, for it is essential that we look on the individual not only in relation to that individual's wants, but in relation to the whole community," he said in conclusion.

INVITATION RECEIVED

Mrs. E. G. Maynard, the president, was in the chair, and the vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Miss Van Becker and Miss Cameron. During supper, which preceded the address, Miss Marjorie Watson, accompanied at the piano by Miss Dorothy Morton, sang very charmingly, her numbers being "Trees" and "Ho! Mr. Piper" (Curran).

Mrs. Maynard read an invitation from the Vancouver Business and Professional Women's Club to a banquet to be held in Hotel Georgia on October 3.

At the next supper meeting, Professor E. S. Farr, of Victoria College, will address the club on "Unemployment." On Monday, September 28, Miss Clay and Miss Wigley will give their reports as delegates to the recent convention.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

When the children go to school they need food. Don't allow them to skip breakfast—that is a bad beginning for any work day—and school is work. Contiuous application to a task whether the brain performs it or the muscles, requires nourishment in the blood stream.

A banana is no breakfast, a pickle is no lunch, and a piece of pie is a poor dinner. Yet is is astounding how many children actively live on just about such fare, sometimes because they have no appetite for wholesome things, sometimes because they are in too much of a hurry or too greatly excited to spend any time at the table.

A child going to school needs a good breakfast; for example, orange juice or some stewed fruit, cereal with whole milk or cream, a piece of toast, a little bacon or a soft boiled egg and extra milk to drink. He may not eat all these things, or the family purse may not stand too elaborate a meal in the morning, but in all events he needs fruit, cereal and milk.

A SUGGESTED LUNCH

Lunch should consist of a nourishing soup or a vegetable, and bread and butter, and milk, and more fruit. If the family dinner is served then so much the better, but a child does not need meat more than once a day unless we class bacon as meat. Vegetables, fruit and milk should always be emphasized.

In the evening too many families depend upon meat and vegetables as the piece de resistance, neglecting the vegetables. Vegetables, it must be remembered, contain the mineral salts so necessary to life—especially the leaf vegetables such as lettuce, spinach, celery, endive and chard.

Desserts are necessary in one way as children do need sugar. Sugar makes energy. But rich pastry in the evening isn't good for children of any age. Custards, cake or cookies made of simple ingredients, fruit whips, ice cream and gelatines, all make excellent wind-ups for the family meal.

MILK IS ESSENTIAL

Coffee and tea will never take the place of milk for the younger members. A child needs a pint of milk a day, and if he is young, a quart in one form or another.

Fruits and vegetables are so cheap now that it is possible to have quite a variety at little expense. It is often the case that the wholesomeness of a meal is in reverse proportion to the pocket-book, for women of means quite frequently overlook the meal-balance, while the housewife who must watch the pennies and make every cent count, watches to see that the food she cooks for the children is plain, wholesome and varied. What more can we ask?

Make them take time to eat, and to chew properly—a meal should be a peaceful, rather deliberate time. And don't let them go to school on an empty stomach.

Canada is now the second largest gold-producing country in the world.

DESCRIBES THE DOLE SYSTEM

Regina, Sask., Sept. 22.—How unemployment insurance operates in England and Germany was described graphically by B. K. Sandwell of Montreal, in an address given this afternoon before the Regina Women's Canadian Club.

Mr. Sandwell is making a tour of Canada under the auspices of the Association of Canadian Clubs.

The lecturer expressed the hope that when unempoyment insurance is established in Canada it will be under the Dominion Government. Lack of unity would result if each provincial government managed its own system, he said, and it would not be for the general good of the powers of Quebec, Ontario, or any other province if it could say to a workman, "You shall not leave your own province or you will lose your right to unemployment insurance no matter how many years you have paid in premiums."

OPERATION ON QUEEN MARIE

Bucharest, Sept. 22.—The carefully disguised secret that Dowager Queen Marie underwent a serious operation immediately after the marriage of her daughter, the Princess Ileana, last July, became public knowledge yesterday. The queen's symptoms were so threatening that the surgeons decided to operate at the royal family summer home at Sinaia.

Empress Started Crinolines and Stripe Stockings

That empress who is being blamed for all the quaint little hats which perch themselves on top of neo-empire curls was the leading arbiter of fashion in her day, for Eugenie was responsible for the advent of striped stockings and crinolines.

To quote from Godey's Lady's Book and Magazine of July 1865: "The Paris correspondent of The Liverpool Courier says that 'the empress possesses the immortal glory of having invented, or at least revived, crinoline petticoats. Such a brilliant act would have fully satisfied the ambition of an ordinary woman.

"But Her Majesty has a lofty soul and aspires to the glory of making another revolution in female costume. For thirty or forty years past, and for aught I know, French ladies have been faithful to the white stocking, and they have firmly set their faces against the attempt of English ladies to introduce the red one. The empress, thinking that the eternal white had become rather monotonous — the red was too glaring, and blue too literary —asked herself if some other color could not be adopted.

"'She thought long and anxiously, and at last the inspiration came—the stocking might be striped! The day after this mental illumination the imperial ankles, and some little space above them, came forth adorned with stockings of blue and white stripes; and all the courtiers proclaimed the union of the two colors ravishing to behold. By this time next year no doubt the new fashion will be as prevalent as that of crinolines.'"

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

CHILDREN'S EARNEST QUESTIONS DEMAND INTELLIGENT ANSWERS

Always the new and startling shocks our interest. If we hear a bit of news for the first time, we react to it mentaly and emotionally. Each additional time we hear it our emotions reach a lower level until at last we can't even pretend an interest in what we hear. Every bit of excitement has been drained from the news.

This process is helpful to the mother who is upset by what her child may hear or see at school. While she has been able to censor his information to some small extent when he is at home, all this changes the moment he goes to school. He meets new playmates, he is away from her supervising eye, and he can hear and see a hundred things of which she may be entirely unaware. What can she do about it?

THE MOTHER'S RESPONSIBILITY

She cannot prevent the child's hearing or seeing anything, but she can prevent his being emotionally disturbed by what he sees or hears. This she can accomplish only by giving the information herself often enough and in sufficient detail to make any other information on this subject of small interest or even a matter of indifference to him.

Of course, the one subject of intense emotional interest to small children is sex information. Children of school age, often younger, cannot escape hearing about sex. The less they hear at home, and the more carefully the subject is shied away from or hushed up, the more alert will be their ears to pick up information elsewhere.

There is nothing awful about sex. The world is made up of two sexes, and that fact alone is quite enough to stimulate the thinking child to ask questions. Why do people marry? Why are boys different from girls? Where do babies come from? Do we expect the intelligent child not to ask questions?

SEEK SENSIBLE MIDDLE-GROUND

There are two ways with which most parents meet the questions children ask them. One is with sentimental vagaries about flowers and birds, which children later see through and despise; the other is with crude vulgarities which offend children and disillusion them. Neither course is desirable. Human beings are not like birds and flowers, and it is useless and confusing to compare them. Neither do children want to be told every detail of reproduction; they are incapable of understanding it, and their interest in sex might be harmfully intensified. We should give neither too little nor too much information, but shape it to meet the child's needs at the moment.

The well-informed parent or the sensible parent knows the safe middle-ground without being told. If she doesn't, she can always read and inform herself on what other parents and educators have to say on the subject. This department offers a list of books on sex education helpful for the parent to read. It also offers a simple explanation of how to answer the small child's questions. Either or both of these leaflets may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Mrs. Eldred, care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

Certificates Are Presented At School Opening

South Park School held its opening exercises Friday afternoon when the auditorium was beautifully decorated for the occasion with autumnal flowers and leaves. In the presence of a large gathering of parents and friends of the school children, A. A. Campbell, principal of the school, conducted the exercises. Trustee V. Emery presented the graduating class of forty-eight boys and girls with their high school entrance certificates, and Trustee J. S. MacMillan addressed the school with a few well-chosen words.

Special regularity and punctuality certificates were presented to Josie and Annelle Seabrook, who had not missed a single day or been late throughout their whole elementary schooling of eight years. Rev. A. de B. Owen made this presentation, amid the applause of the pupils. Another presentation of interest was made to Edith Davies, who won the prize offered by the Hudson's Bay Company for the best garment made by a grade seven girl in the Victoria schools. Dr. Clendenan, president of the James Bay Parent-teachers' Association made the presentation.

Rev. Mr. Owen spoke briefly to the graduating class, congratulating them on their successful showing, and wishing them the best of luck in their pursuit of higher education at the Victoria High School. During the course of the afternoon, the children, under the leadership of G. H. Beven-Pritchard, entertained their guests with a group of songs.

PILES ALL GONE

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct the cause of piles. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 960 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. MacFarlane Drug Store and Vancouver Drug Co. say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back. (Advt.)

Reed Said to Have Won World Championship at Columbus

REALIZING that second money is better than no money at all, the New York Yankees made a spectacular spurt last week to overhaul the Washington Senators and establish themselves as runners-up in the American League. By winning eight straight games, in each of which the starting pitcher went the route, the Yanks caught the Senators and went a game ahead with only a little over a week of play remaining. The only clubs that came near equaling the record of the Joe McCarthy clan for the week were the champion Philadelphia Athletes who won six and lost one, and the Chicago Cubs, of the National League, who set a similar pace.

* * *

In sweeping the week's programme the five Yank pitchers who saw action allowed opposing teams only twelve runs, an average of one and a half per game. Gomez, Pennock and Pipgras scored two victories apiece, while Ruffing and Rhodes each had one. Ruffing and Pipgras pitched shutouts. The club sluggers, led by Ruth and Gehrig, Iazzeri and Dickey, dealt a world of punishment to opposing hurlers.

They collected 77 hits and scored 57 runs, more than any team in the league. Their eleven home runs for the period were almost as many as were produced by the rest of the league together. Their fielding was of similar high order, only five errors being charged against them in the eight games, compared to fifteen bobbles committed by the Cleveland Indians during the week.

* * *

The Boston Red Sox, winding up their first campaign under the management of Shano Collins, enjoyed their most prosperous week of the season by winning seven of their nine starts and climbing out of the American League cellar. The Sox, with Earl Webb, leading the way, collected 95 hits, more than any other American League outfit, and their hurling staff worked smoothly, allowing the opposition only 29 runs.

* * *

Washington, with four wins and three losses, was the only other team in the American League to break even. The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns, meeting strong opposition in the east, each won one out of seven starts

* * *

With Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley hitting at their greatest clip of the season, the St. Louis Cards celebrated the clinching of their second straight National League flag by pounding 101 hits during the week and scoring 59 runs, leading the circuit in both departments. As a result of this splurge Hafey wound up the week as the league's leading hitter. Boston's Braves had another dismal week, losing seven games and winning two.

A clipping from The Charleston Gazette, West Virginia, tells of a recent victory by Ernie Arthur, French-Canadian wrestler who has performed here many times, over Jack Dormar, grappler and ex-pugilist from Toledo. The pair engaged in a bout best three falls out of five. Arthur captured the first, second and fourth falls and dropped the second. He obtained the winning fall with a backward body slam.

Reports have reached here to the effect that Robin Reed, well-known Portland middleweight, won the world's championship in the recent tournament concluded at Columbus, Ohio. Reed is another wrestler well known here, having made a number of appearances at the Tillicum gymnasium. In six bouts here Reed never lost one, although he was held to a draw by Arthur.

Esquimalt Defends Championship With Nearly Same Club

Dockers Will Trot Out Practically Same Eleven That Won City Title Last Year for Opening Game October 3 Against Victoria West; Jokers Will Meet Victoria City in Second Match of Opening Date; All Clubs Appear to Have Strong Line-ups; Victoria City Are "Dark Horses"; Make Another Call for Entries in Second Division

First division football will get under way in Victoria on Saturday, October 3, when four of the teams in the circuit will swing into action. The draw for the opening matches follows: Esquimalt vs. Victoria West and Jokers vs. Victoria City. The Saanich Thistles draw a bye on the opening date. At a meeting of the Victoria and District League held yesterday evening at the Y.M.C.A. the moguls laid final plans for the opening of the league and talked over prospects for what appears to be a good season.

All five clubs are busy whipping their players into condition, with practices and workouts being held nearly every evening. Few changes from last year's line-ups will be noticed in the personnel of the clubs when they trot onto the field, although one or two players have changed their colors.

Esquimalt, last year's city champions, confident of repeating their success, will field about the same club that carried them to the championship in 1930-31. Louis De Costa, rated as one of the premier goalies in the city and selected for numerous Victoria "rep" squads, will guard Esquimalt's nets. For full-backs the defending titleholders have Clyde Nicol and Joe Watt, last year's pair, back in the fold, along with the heavy booting Sweeney. The latter played with the club two years ago, but was inactive last year. He has been out kicking the ball around the last few weeks, and is shaping up well. On the half-back line the Dockers will have Hosmer, Darrell, Mesher and Boyd, although it is not certain yet that the latter will be available.

GOOD FORWARD LINE

The Dockers will have a formidable set of forwards, including Mike Wagland, Bob Stewart, "Scotty" Stewart, John Watt and Peppin. The Dockers are angling for a couple more players, but have not been successful as yet in getting their names on the dotted line. The club held their annual meeting recently, and elected the following officers to act for the season: President, L. De Costa; vice-president, Bob Nicol; secretary-treasurer, J. F. Mesher; manager, A. Bromley; executive, D. Mesher, J. Bryant, P. C. Jones and Norman Patterson.

Manager John Ewing will lead a strong Saanich Thistles eleven into action. The suburbanites boasted a formidable club last season, and they will again be one of the leading contenders for the city championship. For goal the Thistles will have the veteran Tommy Bridges in harness again. Bridges turned in a number of stellar performances last season, being one of the mainstay of the club.

For full-backs the Saanich club will have Harper, Armitage and Joe Crowe available. The Thistles have been fortunate in signing Nurse, hard-working centre half, who played with Esquimalt and the Jokers last season, and it is expected he will occupy this position on the Thistles' club this season. With Nurse at this position, Joe Crowe, who played centre-half last year, may move back to one of the full-back positions. For the other half-back positions the Thistles will have Joe Crowe and Viggers. For their forward line the Saanich club is known to have signed Burns, Minnis and Essler and several others. The last three were all members of the team last season.

WESTS THE SAME

Little change will be seen in the line-up of the Victoria West eleven. Hetherington has been secured for the goalie's position, while Lloyd and Thompson will be on the last line of defence. These two youngsters played well together last season and should stand up well this year. For half-backs the Greenshirts will have the veteran Johnny Peden, Borde and Stewart. On the forward line they will have Youson, "Scotty" Robinson, Mulcahy, Peers and Milligan. Peers is a doubtful starter, as he may leave the city for the winter months.

The Victoria City club is the "dark horse" of the league. Rumors circulating in football circles are that the City are having a difficult task getting an eleven together, but it is expected the team will be ready for action on October 3.

At yesterday evening's meeting it was decided to again call for entries for the proposed Second Divison. At the present time James Island is the only team willing to compete in the new circuit, but it is hoped to have additional entries before the closing date.

GENE SARAZEN CLIPS PAR TO BE MEDALIST

Long Island Pro Turns in Splendid 71 in Opening Round of New England Golf

Aubrey Boomer, Lone Foreign Threat, Has 77; Four Tied For Second

Quincy, Mass., Sept. 22.—Gene Sarazen, Long Island professional, became a medalist for the second successive tournament yesterday when he led a field of 176 in the opening round of the New England open golf play at the Wollaston Golf Club.

Gene, who topped the field in the last week's P.G.A. championship qualifying rounds, clipped two strokes off par by putting six birdies on top of several poor holes for a total of 71.

Four professionals, Bobby Cruickshanks, Purchase, N.Y., Dave, Hackney, Lowell; Charles McAndrew, Quincy, and Larry Lowe, Portland, Maine, equalled the par 73 and finished deadlocked for second place.

SCORING IS GOOD

Three were tied for third with 74s: Bill Melhorn, New York; Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N.Y., and Ber Nicol, Belmont, Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N.Y., and Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, were in the group of 75 carders.

Aubrey Boomer, England, the only foreigner in the quest for prizes totalling $3,000, played steady golf and got a 77 to finish in a six-corner tie for sixth place.

Densmore Shute, Hudson, Ohio, runner-up to Tom Creavy, the new P.G.A. champion, was forced to take an 80, which placed him far back. Creavy failed to appear and Francis Ouimet scheduled to make his first competitive start since his United States amateur championship victory, was forced to remain at his desk in the financial district as a result of the British financial crisis

LOUGHRAN TO MEET SEKYRA

Former Light Heavyweight Champion Odds on Favorite to Win Bout To-night

New York, Sept. 22.—The master boxer of all the heavyweights, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, turns on his fighting equipment against Joe Sekyra, Dayton, O., trial horse, in a ten-round bout at the Queensboro Stadium to-night.

In his last three New York appearances, Loughran has gained decisions, with ludicrous ease, over Max Baer, Ernie Schaaf, and Victoria Campolo, the Argentine giant, to whom Tommy conceded fifty pounds.

Charlie Retzlaff meets Dick Onken, Germany, in the ten-round semi-final.

Dempsey Is Poor Sport Declares Estelle Taylor

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Estelle Taylor accused Jack Dempsey of "poor sportsmanship" yesterday evening, and said she would not recognize the divorce he obtained from her yesterday in Reno.

"I'm sorry Jack should do anything so 'unsportsmanlike'," said the former heavyweight champion's actress wife, who is appearing at a theatre here.

"Jack may feel very free at this moment, but until the California courts, where we both maintain residence, declare me free, I shall still declare myself Mrs. Jack Dempsey."

HIGH RUGGERS WILL NOT PLAY IN CITY LEAGUE

Victoria School Fifteen Unable to Field Team For Intermediate Circuit

Team Will Concentrate on Retaining B.C. Title; Practice Held Yesterday

Victoria High School senior ruggers, at a special meeting yesterday afternoon, decided not to enter the city intermediate league.. In taking this stand members of the fifteen, which captured the British Columbia high school title last year, noted that many of their members worked on Saturdays and would be unable to get away for games. Others played on teams outside the intermediate loop.

Claude Campbell, one of the coaches, reminded the gathering that play in such a division would be outside the school league. He suggested the team concentrate on the high school title with a view to retaining the championship it won last year.

Whether or not Saturday games would be supported by the school was also questioned.

"Muzz" Patrick and Frank Dale-Johnson, forwards, and Walter Stipe, fullback, three other boys who gained places on last year's squad, turned out for the practice which followed the meeting.

Alex "Bill" Gaunt, brother of Roy who left the city last year to play in the English Northern Division, also donned the gold and black uniform. He has recently recovered from severe injuries.

Workout days were changed to Mondays and Wednesdays instead of Tuesdays and Thursdays as formerly.

GAINS WINNER OVER RENAULT

Canadian Heavyweight Champion Takes Easy Decision From Montreal Veteran

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 22.—Returning to a Toronto ring after more than two years' campaigning in Europe, where he was undefeated in more than twenty ring appearances, Larry Gains, colored holder of the Canadian and British Empire heavyweight boxing titles, yesterday evening easily won a ten-round bout from the veteran slugger Jack Renault, Montreal.

Entering the ring a 3 to 1 favorite, the dusky champion boxed cautiously for the first two rounds before opening a relentless attack on Renault's body in the third stanza. Wearing his opponent down with accurately placed rights and lefts to the body, Gains piled up a considerable point margin before the half way mark was reached.

The medalist was three strokes in front of Mrs. E. Jackson, Uplands star, who gained second place honors with a total of 93. Canada's Marathon Team For Olympics Of Unknown Quality

Dominion Will Have No Trouble Selecting Group to Take Part in Los Angeles Games But Nobody Will Know Ability of Runners; Wyer, Webster, Bricker, Miles and Reynolds Still the Best; Wyer in Form Would Be Tough Opponent to Beat; Anderson Fine Prairie Prospect, Not Eligible

By ELMER DULMAGE

Winnipeg, Sept. 22—It has never been a very difficult matter to pick a strong team of distance runners from Canada and it won't be hard next spring to choose a group for the Los Angeles games that is quite as good as the one Canada sent to Amsterdam in 1928. The unsatisfactory thing about it is nobody will know whether the new team is any better than the old—or vice versa.

If little Percy Wyer, the aged Toronto midget, had one of his good days the day the Olympic marathon is run, the mite plodder would be a tough opponent for any runner in the world to beat. Similarly, Johnny Cuthbert, Guelph's veteran Scot, is almost unbeatable when he has an "on day." Cliff Bricker, Galt, was consistently superior to anything in Canada before the 1928 Olympic games, but he wasn't going good when Canada wanted him to be most.

And from appearances, the Dominion's distance-events hopes rest practically on the same uncertain shoulders they did three years ago. Harold Webster, Billy Reyonlds, Johnny Miles, Weyer and Bricker are still the best, one one day and another the next. Cuthbert, who slipped back a little after he ran at the 1924 Paris Olympics, has once more taken to winning marathons and modified marathons. But for the most part, there hasn't been many changes in the general situation. Last Saturday Webster gave a fine performance to win the Olympic marathon trial at Hamilton with Miles in second place.

Instead of marathoning, Bricker may definitely choose to make the 10,000 metres his distance and Webester is likely to follow suit. The forty-four-year-old Hamilton star won the Canadian six-mile championship for the second time this month at Winnipeg. Bricker has won several events at this distance in the east since he returned to the game after a two-year layoff.

Three years ago Bricker rated as the best marathon man Canada had produced since Billy Sherring, Hamilton, ran a historic May-day race at Athens in 1906. Sent overseas several weeks before the Olympic Games so he could become acclimated, the sensational Galt boy finished tenth. Bricker retired shortly after his return, and only recently attempted a comeback.

MILES IN-AND-OUTER

Johnny Miles, the smiling Bluenose, who runs for Hamilton Olympic Club, may spring an upset victory in any event he tackles, but Johnny is the most famed in-and-outer of the lot. Wyer ranks as the steadiest.

Denmark has given western Canada a fine distance prospect in Hartington Anderson, red-haired fellow woh has become outstanding at any distance up to ten miles, but he is ineligible for an Olympic team place owing to the residence rule. Running for the Calgary Altomah Club, Anderson ran away from field after field this season, and only failed to place in the Dominion six-mile title race at Winnipeg because his legs gave out on the heavy dirt horse-race track where the grind was held.

Anderson chased Webster for three miles without showing any signs of trouble, remaining only a few yards behind. He kept on after Billy Reynolds had quit and when he finally called it a day was only seventy-five yards back of Webster.

Dave Komenen, Toronto, is another who may oust one of the old-timers from the next Olympic squad. He has given impressive performances in races at varied distances in Ontario and recently battled Bricker right up to the tape in an international twelve-mile marathon at Toronto.

Another Galt man, Fred Sargeant, seems likely to lead Canada's prospective 5,000-metre runners into action at the 1932 Olympic trials. After trying almost every long distance, Sergeant has settled back to the 5,000 as his specialty and even gallops an occasional mile in competition to test his speed.

He easily conquered Billy Kibblewhite, Winnipeg youth, who ran in the Amsterdam games at Winnipeg this month. Fred Franklin, a team-mate of Kibblewhite, is coming along fast, and stands ahead of black-haired Billy as a possibility.

One or two of a large field of aspirants in the east are quite likely to develop in the next year, perhaps sufficiently to threaten the old stand-bys, but there doesn't seem to be anything better than Bricker, Reynolds, Cuthbert, Miles and Wyer can offer in a marathoning way.

The young fellows may turn out to be as good, but will they be better?

Boston Red Sox Sensation of American League

Club Climbs Into Fifth Place With Late Season Dash

gured to Have an Eighth Ranking Club Manager Shano Collins Has Piloted Sox Into Leadership of Second Division; Club Has Been Playing Some of Best Ball in Majors During Last Month; Beat St. Louis Twice Yesterday; Yanks Drop Back Into Tie With Washington for Second Place

The Boston Red Sox and their new manager, Shano Collins, are proving themselves the surprise package of the American gue. It looks like they will finish in fifth place, which is etly three places higher than their most optimistic supporters ld have predicted a month ago.

If they do Collins may regard his first season in the majors as a howling success. He took over a team that consisted of a high-class pitching staff and one very fine outfielder, Earl Webb, and in the closing month of the campaign he has a club that has been playing some of the best ball in either league. A fortnight ago the Red Sox began giving their pitchers some runs and the result has been little short of astounding.

In vaulting from eighth place to fifth, the Sox have won eleven of their last thirteen games. A double victory over St. Louis yesterday, 2 to 0 and 9 to 2, gave them five in a row, their longest winning streak of the year. Bill Durham, a frail right hander, pitched his third victory and second shutout in ten days as he let the Browns down with three hits in the first tilt. Ed. Morris allowed only four blows in the nightcap and won when his mates jumped on Sam Gray for all their runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

DURHAM PITCHES WELL

To give an idea of the kind of pitching the Sox have been getting, Durham has allowed only one run in his last three games, including one thirteen-inning struggle, while Danny McFayden has yielded but three runs in as many contests.

The New York Yankees fell back into a tie with Washington for second place in the American when they dropped a 5 to 1 decision to Cleveland while the Senators were trimming the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 3. Their race for runner-up post looks like the big feature of the closing week.

Wes Ferrell turned in his twenty-first triumph as he held the Yankees to nine widely scattered hits while his support bunched eight off Charlie Ruffing. It broke a ten-game winning streak for Ruth, Gehrig and Company. The Senators beat Ted Lyons, last year's ace of the White Sox staff, by bunching their eight hits in four frames.

Tapering off in preparation for the World Series, the Athletics divided with Detroit, winning one game, 3 to 2, and losing another, 6 to 5. Jimmy Foxx hit a home run in each game, his second coming with the bases filled in the seventh inning of the nightcap and tying the score.

Tony Kauffman, St. Louis Cardinal relief pitcher, supplied the high light in the day's National League programme when he held Brooklyn hitless for four and two-third innings while the league champions came from behind to win in ten innings, 11 to 10. Jimmy Collins' triple after Jim Bottomley had walked gave the Cards the verdict in the tenth.

THREE IN A ROW

The Cincinnati Reds took their third straight from the floundering Boston Braves, 3 to 2, when they fell upon Seibold for four hits and two runs in the eighth inning. Red Lucas scattered nine hits to chalk up his fourteenth victory.

The Phillies pecked away at four Pittsburgh pitchers to take their series opener, 6 to 4. Bill Harris, the Pirates' rookie sensation, lasted only four innings. Jim Elliott held the Pirates well until the eighth, when Ray Benge had to go in and smooth things over. Rogers Hornsby's pitching staff received a fine drubbing as the New York Giants made twenty-seven hits good for a 15 to 7 win over the Cubs. Hal Schumacher went the route for the winners, while five Chicago flingers had little success.

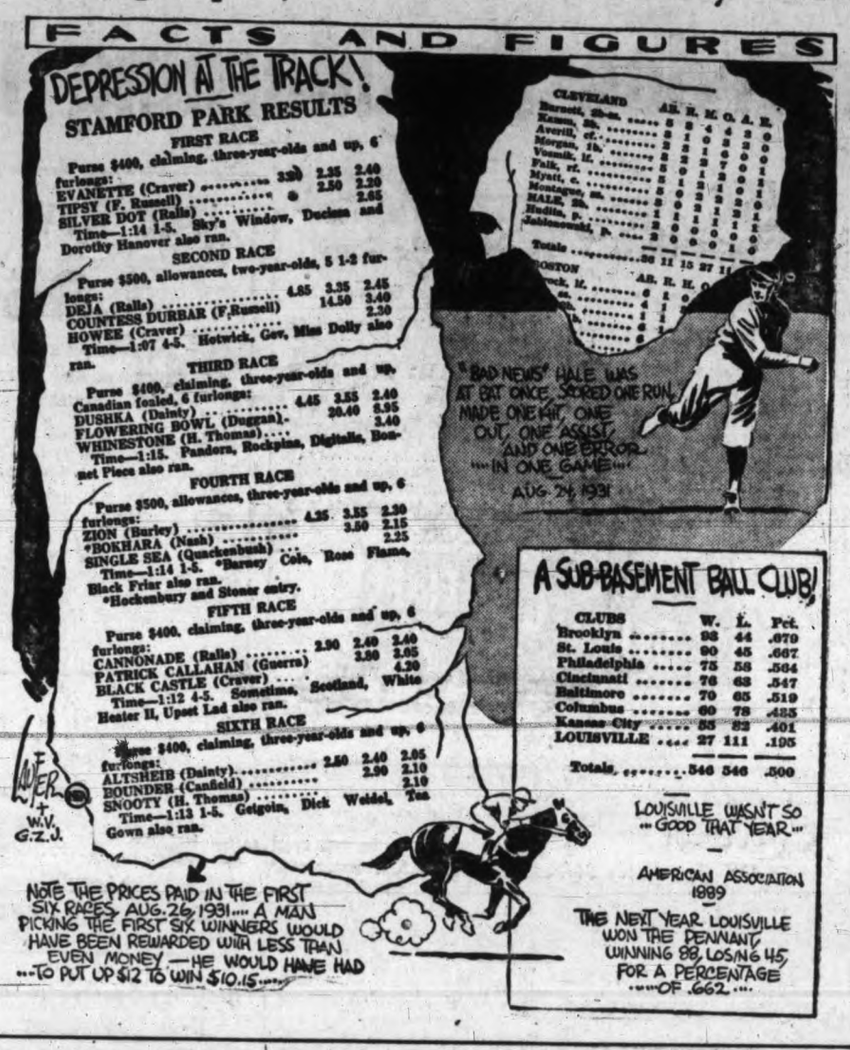
Brushing Up Sports . . . . . By Laufer



Chick Hafey, the Cardinals' slugging outfielder, took a firmer hold on first place in the National League batting race yesterday when he rapped a double and two singles in three times up, to boost his average to .353, a gain of five points. His closest rival, Bill Terry, of the Giants, also had a perfect "three for three" day and climbed to .349. Jim Bottomley, of the Cardinals, made three hits in five trips to take over third place with a mark of .341. Al Simmons, leader of the American League, pulled farther away from Babe Ruth when the Yank star went hitless in four times up.

HOOT GOES TO GIANTS

Sam "Hoot" Gibson, the long right-hander who toiled some years for Toronto in the International League, and who this year won more than twenty games for the San Francisco Seals, is back in the majors and he should go this time, providing Manager McGraw of the New York Giants sees that he gets his fodder regularly. Gibson was purchased for the reported sum of $30,000 (he was sold by Toronto for half that amount to the Yankees a year ago.) He is anything but a spendthrift. When his meals are bought for him by the ball club he does not stint himself, but when he is given so much daily to buy his groceries, he is what is generally known as a "cream-puffer." Men who know Gibson well say darkness and the electric light have made him great because he is particularly fitted for that kind of pitching. His delivery favors it. He is one of those pitchers with more motion than a contortionist tying a double bow knot around his back. He will not, of course, get any night games in the majors. If he fails to win for the Giants, and then goes back to California and is successful out there again, it will be pretty well conceded that he is an electric-light pitcher.

Forward Pass Will Feature Play of Four Clubs in Interprovincial Loop

Hamilton Tigers, Last Year's Champions, Equipped With Usual Heavy Line

Canadian Press

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The rugby pot is boiling, with exhibition games already tucked away and one or two more to come. Coaches in the Interprovincial Union are bearing down on the candidates for the four teams in the loop, and when October 10 rolls around all should be ready. And this far away, choosing the winner seems a hopeless task.

The crux of the situation rests on the forward pass this year. Just what can be done about the spectacular flip is the question.

Pre-season training is well under way. And in just about every case, coaches are specializing on the forward flip—but not too much. They figure, perhaps rightly, that for some time opposition mentors will watch the progress of the pass, and there will still be the bruising line attacks and the kicking to fall back on when a team is hard pressed.

Hamilton Tigers, last year's loop champions, seem well equipped. Much of the heavy line which carried them to the Dominion championship in 1929 and a successful tour of the west in 1930 remains, and in addition there are numerous new candidates for berths on the squad.

Among others of last year's squad they have Timmins, Denman, Cox, Wright, Boadway, Zvonkin, Fear, Sprague, Gibb, Languay and young Jack Tierney, whose booting was a feature last year.

ARGOS LOOK STRONG

Toronto Argonauts are also well supplied with players. Frank Turville, whose booting last year was a feature of every game, is in uniform again. Don Robinson, a former American college player, an expert at the forward pass, has featured the Argo practices. They have also signed Alex Carrick, who formerly starred with Art Snider on Toronto Varsity's second line. Then there is Ted Morris, former Winnipeg junior; Bas McNicol and a dozen or more who could take a stellar position on any big-time team.

But despite the apparent superiority of Tigers and Argonauts, Montreal A.A.A. must be considered. Their decisive defeat of Balmy Beach Dominion champions by 16 to 0 in an exhibition bill at Montreal Satuday is as good an indication of their strength as any.

In Perry, Wanless and Whitty they have a smart backfield, while their line leaves nothing much to be desired. They kept Huck Welch in reserve Saturday, and the former Hamilton punter seemed to be as good as ever when he did dive into action.

OTTAWA UNKNOWN

Ottawa is an unknown quantity. The Senators have not done very well in the last two or three years, but under Coach Dave McCann have shown a spirit that had been lacking. Clair Forster has developed a long, accurate pass that may help the team a lot. Ogilvie's kicking has stood out in practices. Dave Harding, formerly of Camp Borden, is better than ever. Hartwick, Perley and Lachanee are in there, while many of the younger Candidates will deevlop with further practice.

Generally, there is an atmosphere of confidence prevailing. Ottawa meets Montreal on October 10, while Argos will travel to Hamilton on the same date.

Seek Support For Playing Field In Foul Bay District

All residents of Foul Bay district are requested to attend the organization meeting of the Foul Bay Playing Fields' Association in the Presbyterian Mission, Wildwood Avenue, on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in an appeal issued by Percy Payne, one of the organizers of the body.

At the meeting a report will be given on the interview members had with the City Council recently. It is expected those presenting the report will give a detailed account of the manner in which the civic body received their request for a playing field in the district. Officers will be elected at the meeting and a constitution will be drafted.

DOUBLE MURDER INDICATED IN ALBERTA FIRE

Brooks, Alta., Sept. 22—A double murder and suicide was the conclusion reached by police yesterday evening in investigation into discovery of three bodies in a burned dwelling at Rainier, eighteen miles south of here.

Sergeant Cawsey, Alberta Provincial Police, reported that investigation disclosed Fred Leike, railway employee, had slain his housekeeper, Mrs. Elizabeth Irwin, and her two-year-old daughter, Kathlee, set fire to his home and then shot himself fatally. An inquest into the deaths, conducted by Dr. C. E. Anderson of Brooks will be held September 28.

TRADE PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

Australian Party Confers With Premier Tolmie on Proposed Exchange

Trade possibilities between Australia and Canada were discussed yesterday by members of the Australian Goodwill Trade Party and Premier Tolmie.

Tariffs aimed at creation of a two-way seasonal trade in apples and onions were proposed. B.C. commodities would be sent to Australia in the fall and the Australian products would come here in the spring. Climatic differences between the two countries would make the trade possible as in the spring the markets here are bare of the local products.

Special plans to route Australians visiting the Old Country through Canada were also considered. Speakers of the Australian party pointed out that residents of the Commonwealth aimed to visit Great Britain at least once, and the journey through Canada would prove a great attraction. The Premier promised to take up this question with the Canadian railroads.

The Australian visitors were guests of the province at a private dinner in the Union Club yesterday evening, several members of the cabinet and Hon. Dr. Murray MacLaren attending.

FAVOR DICKENS IN SCHOOL NOW

Well-known English Novelist Popular, Local Branch of Fellowship Told

Members of the local branch of the Dickens Fellowship, at its first meeting of the winter series at the home of Mrs. Wilfrid Ord, Cook Street, yesterday evening, heard of the popularity of Dickens's works in school reading.

C. C. Pemberton, president, presented a list of publishers who had put out editions suitable for school work. Among these were the Children's Library edition of "Little Nell," and the MacMillan Company's "The Cricket on the Hearth" and "A Christmas Carol." He gave a chronological list of the principal works of the well-known English novelist with suggestions for teachers and good explanatory notes.

Mr. Pemberton also announced an unusual edition of "A Christmas Carol" had been found in a second-hand store bearing the inscription: "With the compliments of Ormiston and Glass, the Saracen's Head House, Snow Hill, London, E.C." It was noted Dickens had immortalized the Sarcen's Head House in his "Nicholas Nickleby."

SECURE INTERESTING PICTURE

A picture depicting a scene in "Dombey and Son" was also produced as a valuable souvenir.

A. W. Arnup, secretary, brought to the attention of the meeting the theft of original Dickens manuscripts and the sentencing of the thief to twelve month's hard labor.

Special greetings were extended to Mrs. Paterson of Vancouver; Mrs. Stacey, a member of the Toronto Dickens Fellowship and Miss Eugenie Perry, all visitors.

The question of whether or not to hold a Christmas entertainment was referred to the committee.

The meeting decided, following the suggestion of the current number of The Dickensian, to make "Dombey and Son" the book for study during the present season.

The secretary read a letter from Miss Florence Dickens, niece of Charles Dickens, written to T. D. Sedger, Victoria architect. Miss Dickens included with her letter some cards which she had painted illustrating the Dickens section of the Rochester pageant.

AUSTRALIA ANXIOUS FOR MORE TRADE

Goodwill Party, Here on Tour, Laying Foundation for Greater Business

A. E. Hyland, Trade Publicity Head, Urges Reciprocity Between Countries

With the object of laying the foundation for a greater trade in the near future, three members of Australia's "goodwill" party, headed by A. E. Hyland, director of Australian trade publicity in the United Kingdom, were in Victoria yesterday. H. E. Laffer, representing raisin and wine interests of Australia, and C. E. Critchley, assistant trade commissioner for Australia in Canada, are the other members of the party. Captain F. C. Brown, chairman of the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, came over from Vancouver with the visitors.

"Our mission is to encourage and promote business between the two countries. We are making contacts with the business men and merchants of Canada and are doing our best to lay the foundation for a trade to come between this land and Australia," said Mr. Hyland yesterday in summarizing the objects of the tour.

"The situation is promising. There will be a big increase in business on both sides if the recently-announced trade treaty is regarded in an understanding fashion. It is part of our undertaking to stimulate interest in and spread the knowledge of the treaty.

MUST HAVE RECIPROCITY

"We are anxious to impress on everyone, that if the great agreement is to succeed, it is urgently necessary that there should be a true spirit of reciprocity between the two countries. In other words, it is of vital importance that each of the Dominions should buy from the other as well as sell to it.

"Canada will find Australia eager to buy her lumber, paper pulp, newsprint, salmon, machinery and motor-cars. On the other hand, Australia wishes Canada to realize the importance of buying currants and raisins, canned peaches and pineapples, oranges and lemons, and wines, which are all of the highest quality.

PROMISED SUPPORT

"We have nothing but warm appreciation for the hospitality of the people of Canada, and for the promises of support we have received." Mr. Hyland expressed the hope the situation on the prairies would improve shortly and remarked upon the spirit of fraternity existing between the two lands.

Yesterday the party called on Premier Tolmie. With them went Captain Brown and T. A. Lewis, representative of the Associated Growers of British Columbia.

ANTICIPATE TRADE INCREASE

Questioned regarding the arrival of the first big cargo of Australian goods in Victoria, Mr. Hyland stated ships from that land were constantly bringing in goods. Under the new treaty he expected these imports to increase and looked for a corresponding growth in Canada's exports from Victoria and Vancouver to the Antipodes.

The arrival of the delegation in this city marked the end of a long trip throughout Canada, during which the Australian representatives received promises of support from all whom they met and with whom they discussed the new treaty.

A special "goodwill" ship, laden with Australian merchandise, will reach Montreal on October 17 and will return to its home port bearing Canadian goods on October 25.

BUDGET PROBLEM FACES MR. JONES

Curtailment of Public Services or Increased Taxes Forecast in B.C.

Salary Cuts Would Save little, It Is Said; Limit on Unemployment Relief

Either sweeping reorganization of public services to curtail the cost which the British Columbia government now faces under these items or increases in taxation will feature the next Jones budget which is now being given consideration by members of the government.

Reports from the Parliament Buildings indicate that these are the two alternatives faced in view of falling revenues, heavy cost of relieving unemployment and decision to avoid at all costs any further borrowings in the open market at present. The government is reported to be examining every possible avenue of economy to meet the situation during the remainder of the present year.

Suggestions made to the government that economy could be effected by salary cuts have been viewed with little favor, it is understood. A mere percentage cut in salaries it is claimed would be inadequate and is not regarded as desirable on the grounds that it would reduce purchasing power.

The drop in the Canadian dollar, it is thought, will have no direct effect on British Columbia finances, as the province has to pay no interest to United States investors in United States funds. The recent decline in the price of prairie provinces' bonds and the sagging of markets generally, however, is expected to have an effect on the province's securities which has led to the desire to avoid borrowings. It is expected that a definite limit will be set on the amount of money to be spent in the relief of unemployment.

Metchosin

The Metchosin and District Community Club met on Friday evening at the hall, the chair being taken by C. H. Helgesen. Major Meredith Jones reported 108 senior and seventeen junior members enrolled. Activities had included a successful flower and bulb show, and variety shows given by the senior members and by juniors. Electric light had been installed in the hall and a water supply would be provided as soon as possible.

The winter season's activities will include the annual pioneer entertainment on Friday, October 23; an entertainment by the juniors will be given on November 13, a lecture by C. L. Harrison on November 27, a play on December 11, a concert and dance on December 22 and a play on February 19. The secretary proposed that at future meetings members pay a fee of 10 cents to pay the rent of the hall and this was agreed to.

Rehearsals of old-time dances will be held, so that they may be more generally participated in at the Pioneer gathering. The first rehearsal will be held at the hall next Saturday at 8 o'clock.

Formation of an orchestra by club members was also considered.

The annual election of a new executive will take place at the next meeting. At the conclusion of the business meeting dancing was enjoyed to G. Schofield's orchestra. Contract and auction bridge were played in the committee rooms, the winners being: Auction bridge, first lady, Mrs. Meredith-Jones, second lady, Mrs. R. S. Peacock, first gentleman, H. G. Pierce; contract bridge, first lady, Mrs. Tremayne, first gentleman, H. S. Jordan. Supper was served by members of the club, the conveners being Mrs. T. Barclay and Mrs. Jonas.

Miss Nancy Dunn, R.N., public health nurse, who has been the guest of Mrs. H. S. Jordan, has left for Sunset Prairie in the Peace River.

CHANCE governs the general trend of too many lives

By chance too many of us live in a certain house, on a certain street, work along certain lines; not really contented, but too indolent to change.
DON'T BE ONE OF THESE. If you've outgrown your present home, or it is too large for you, someone else may find it perfection.
We have had numerous transactions of this kind in our office, and at this writing a few very tempting exchanges are among our listings. It will be a pleasure to assist you.

Fatigue Caused By Formation Of Lactic Acid In Muscles

Purpose of Oxygen Is to Remove This Secretion

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

If a muscle is taken from the body and stimulated once every second its contractions will become slower and slower, and weaker and weaker. In a few minutes it will be unable to contract at all.

If these contractions are traced and recorded one above the other the curve of contractions at first is tall and narrow. As the muscle becomes tired the contractions get weaker and slower, until finally the muscle simply will not move at all.

The first effect of the fatigue is a slowing of the contraction rather than a weakening. Those who have run long races know that near the end of the race the legs do not seem to be weak but they simply will not move as fast as we want them to move.

If the blood supply is cut off from the one set of leg muscles and permitted to go on in the other set, and if the muscles are then stimulated, the muscles without blood become fatigued much more quickly than those that are receiving blood. In fact, the muscles without blood seem to become paralyzed in a few minutes.

The experiment can be tried in a simple way by comparing two kinds of exercise. If you chin yourself on a bar your muscles become unable to respond in a few minutes in the chinning exercise because the bending and swelling presses on the blood vessels and interferes with the blood supply.

However, if the limbs are moving freely and the blood circulates easily through them, violent exercise such as swinging Indian clubs, using the weights, or gymnastics may be indulged in for a long time.

The important factor in this connection is oxygen. The muscles have in themselves enough food material to take care of that used up by work. It has been suggested that the flow of blood carries away poisons that are developed by the muscles in their work. No doubt, poisons are carried away. But the crucial experiment may be made of letting two muscles work, one with oxygen and one without. The one without oxygen wears out in a few minutes. The one with oxygen goes on working for a long time. When both are completely fatigued they are allowed to rest. After the rest the one that had oxygen recovers and works again. The muscle that had no oxygen fails to recover; it does not contract again.

As explained by Dr. A. V. Hill, Nobel prize winner in medicine, and Fourlerton, professor of the Royal Society, a good runner of the sprint distances, going at full speed, would need more than thirty quarts of oxygen per minute if he were required to continue the speed of the 100-yard dash for a long time.

It has been found by measurement that a man's heart and lungs can supply him with about one-seventh of that amount, so that he cannot go on at such a high speed for more than a fraction of a minute. He gets tired and acquires what the physiologists call an "oxygen debt." The tiredness is due to the appearance of a substance called lactic acid in the muscle fibres.

As much as one ounce of lactic acid appears when a man runs 100 yards as fast as he can. Fatigue of a muscle occurs mainly due to the formation of the lactic acid. The purpose of the oxygen is to remove the lactic acid.

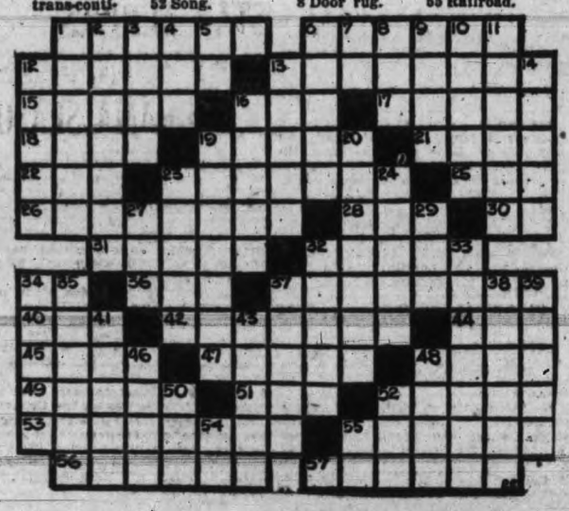
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER



IT WILL CARRY 100 TONS—AND WILL NOT STICK IN THE MUD

Back seat driving is done by telephone in the world's largest road vehicle, pictured here. There is a communication line connecting the drivers in the front and back of the colossal truck. Capable of carrying a 100-ton bulk load, this mammoth transporter, developed in England, has fourteen wheels and the load is always evenly distributed between the axles. There is no possibility that the vehicle will be helpless if its driving wheels sink into a soft spot in the road, for provision has been made for lifting the driving wheels of the motive unit clear of the ground, so that steel plates can be placed under them. There is a steering gear for the rear carrier wheels.

HEALTH MINISTER SEES QUARANTINE

Hon. Murray MacLaren Now on Coast on Tour of Inspection

Canada's Minister of Health and Pensions is on the Coast on a tour of inspection of all the offices and facilities that come under his department.

He is the Hon. Murray MacLaren, one of the best known medical doctors of the Maritime Provinces. He sits in the House of Commons for the riding of St. John-Albert, New Brunswick.

Monday, accompanied by Dr. C. P. Brown and other officials at William Head, he made the rounds of the quarantine station there and of the lazaretto at Bentinck Island. He also spent some time with his old friend, Premier Tolmie. To-day he will visit Shaughnessy Hospital, Vancouver.

While her husband was busy on his visits here, Mrs. MacLaren was entertained by Mrs. Tolmie and Mrs. C. H. Dickie.

Dr. MacLaren became prominent for his war services overseas as commander of No. 1 General Hospital and with the Canadian Red Cross administration. Since the war he has been Canadian representative on the advisory council of the British Ministry of Pensions and Canadian representative on the interallied committee on disabled soldiers. He has also been president of the St. John Ambulance Association.

Japanese Consul Tells of Standing Of Japan's Trade

The merchandise export from Japan proper during August amounted to yen 107,000,000, yielding an export excess of yen 20,000,000. The adverse balance of trade since January, 1931, aggregated yen 82,000,000 which shows a decline of yen 96,000,000 in comparison with the figures for the same period a year ago, a statement issued by the Japanese Consul to-day says.

The excess outflow of gold and silver amounted to yen 33,000,000 which makes a total of yen 56,000,000 since January, 1931.

The merchandise exports from colonies (Taiwan and Chosen) amounted to yen 2,900,000 and the excess import yen 1,600,000 for August, the total import excess for eight months amounting to yen 36,000,000. The export to China for July amounted to yen 30,000,000. The favorable balance of trade with China since January, 1931, totalled yen 14,000,000.

In the financial market, the treasury certificates amounting to yen 60,000,000 were redeemed and the deposit office lowered interest rate on the savings deposits. Consequently the idle money increased in the market but call money was tightened on the fair demands of funds to meet with the settlement at the terminal season by the old calendar. The interest was quoted at 1.3 sen per hundred yen per diem (4.745 per cent per annum) at the end of August. The stock market is holding, but is quiet due to the weakness in the financial markets abroad.

The capital for the newly established corporations and banks registered during July amounted to yen 20,000,000. The capital for expansion showed yen 2,000,000, and debentures for the month yen 20,000,000.

The commodity markets reported favorable trend of sales for saw silk. The decline in the world supply of raw silk and the estimate of smaller domestic crop of the summer and autumn cocoons created an optimistic view for the future. Yarn indicated a downward trend on the news of a great increase in the crop estimate of the American raw cotton, but the demands for cotton yarn at home and abroad are so large that the spinning industry is favorably placed on a paying basis. A plan to form an export association is in the course of progress for the promotion of the export of cement.

FOUND ORINOCO RIVER'S HIDDEN SOURCE

It was to report success in his fifth attempt to reach the source of the Orinoco River in Brazil that Dr. Herbert S. Dickey, famed American scientist, returned to New York. He is pictured above with Mrs. Dickey upon their arrival after a five months' exploration trip. The expedition headed by Dickey found that the 1,600-mile stream had its source in the Parima Mountain of Brazil. They were the first white people to penetrate the jungles to the spot.

NO STATEMENT ON ESQUIMALT RELIEF PLAN

Press Excluded From Council Meeting When Pooley Letter Is Discussed

Board of Trade Asks Information But Is Roundly Scored

No hint of what turn the Provincial Government will take in its programme to assist the unemployed of Esquimalt, or what the council of that district thought of information laid before it in a letter from Hon. R. H. Pooley was forthcoming at the council meeting yesterday evening. Behind doors closed to the press the councillors continued their deliberations in committee, after a private meeting the preceding week.

Minutes of the earlier gathering were accepted after silent perusal by members of the council. And the residents of the district as well as the unemployed themselves were left with no knowledge of the subject as the council declined to give any statement.

A letter from the Board of Trade of the district, asking the council to keep it in touch with progress on the unemployed deliberations and to inform the board of what steps had been taken with respect to having Esquimalt and Admiral's roads taken over as primary highways in a relief scheme, incensed Councillor A. Lockley and other members of the council.

He immediately moved it be received and filed. The motion was seconded by Councillor A. Heald. Councillor Hadfield explained that he had attended the last Board of Trade meeting and had been given to understand that the board wished to co-operate with the council on the problem. He expressed the hope the board would be given as much information as could be made public.

CRITICIZED BEFORE

Councillor Lockley referred to an earlier letter from the board in which that body had criticized the council for its alleged tardiness in secuing assistance and had rapped it for expressing for the primary highway scheme. After such a communication he questioned the advisability of keeping the board informed.

Councillor Hadfield persisted he felt the trade body wished to aid the council.

After hearing this side of the question, Councillor Heald moved the letter be given as much information as is public property.

Reeve James Elrick pointed out that while some members of the trade organization were striving sincerely to aid the municipality, others were using the board for political purposes. He expressed the conviction some were looking for material from which they could make political capital at the next election.

After further discussion, Reeve Elrick and Councillor Lockley asked if they thought sufficient information could be secured from the municipal clerk.

The latter concluded with the question, "We are going to exclude the press while we read and discuss the letter from Mr. Pooley. Are they (members of the Board of Trade) going to be shown the letter?"

SUGGESTS PLAN FOR RELIEF OF WESTERN NEEDY

Galt, Ont., Sept. 22.—A. M. Edwards, M.P. for South Waterloo, in a letter sent to Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, suggests that the excess of fruit and vegetables in Ontario be gathered at different points under the supervision of country agricultural representatives and shipped in refrigerator cars to the needy in Western Canada, the farmer to be given a reasonable advance of the market prices for fruit and vegetables.

He also suggests that the same principle could be carried out in the purchase of shoes, underwear, clothing, etc., except that orders placed with manufacturers should be based on cost prices, less discounts for quantity.

If this was done many of the unemployed would be given work, Mr. Edwards claims.

PLANE CRASHES

Leavenworth, Kansas, Sept. 22.—Andrew Kelson of Chicago, pilot, and Charles W. Shur of Los Angeles, passenger, were killed to-day when a plane of the Nevin Air Transport Company of Chicago, crashed in a field near Wallula, in Leavenworth County.

He Spoiled It

Lover—Do you know, darling, you are so clever and so charming and so brilliant that at times I feel quite embarrassed in your presence.

She—But, dearest, you mustn't think that way.

He—Oh, I dare say I'll get over the feeling when I know you better.

TRADE EXPERT SEES ADVANCE

Autumn and Winter Months Will Mark Progress, Says Sweeting

Many major activities are noticeable in the western industrial programme that should tend to bring about a general betterment of conditions, John F. Sweeting, industrial commissioner, western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, says in a review of the industrial outlook of the west received by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Sweeting refers to undertakings planned in British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba. Many activities keep the coast province progressing, and looking forward to the solution of the problems that are with it as they are everywhere else, he says.

"When a survey is made of the west and while recognizing to the full value the difficulties that have arisen as the result of general world-wide conditions, it is noticeable that there are in the western programme many major activities that must be of distinct importance, and tend to bring without doubt a betterment of conditions," Mr. Sweeting says.

"Altogether improvement appears to be more noticeable, and the autumn and winter months, as far as the west is concerned, will produce many activities and show better results in trade and development."

TRAFFIC SIGNALS UP TO COUNCIL

Expenditure of $9,000 Required For Automatic System Here

Providing the City Council will authorize an expenditure of approximately $9,000, automatic electric traffic control signals will be installed in Victoria this fall, it was indicated following a conference yesterday between Chief of Police T. Heatley, Commissioner Andrew McGavin and representatives of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Having obtained full data on the cost and operation of the signals, the police commission, it is understood, will recommend to the council that the work be undertaken. A special meeting of the police board in the near future will deal with the matter.

Adoption of the new system, the chief pointed out, would mean a decided change in the habits of both motorists and pedestrians in the city. Jaywalkers, of whom there are a considerable number here, must disappear. Horseshoe turns and left turns at intersections where the signals are posted, will be banned. Amendments to the Streets, Traffic and Regulations By-law will be necessary to meet the case.

"Only by enforcement of traffic rules in all directions can we stop the number of accidents. The automatic control system for the downtown area, when functioning properly, will eliminate to a great extent the danger now existing of auto-pedestrian mishaps, of which there have been a number lately," Chief Heatley said.

The signals, if adopted, will be installed at the main intersections of Douglas and Government Streets in the business area.

INQUEST FINDS DRIVER OF CAR WAS BLAMELESS

Miss G. W. Scott, Fifty-five, Met Accidental Death on Quadra Street

Jury Thinks Long, Projecting Radiator Caps Dangerous and Should Be Prohibited

That Miss Grace W. Scott, fifty-year old housekeeper, met death accidentally after being knocked down on Quadra Street last Saturday night by a car driven by F. A. Nickells, sixty-two years old, was the jury's verdict at the inquest conducted this morning in Hayward's (B.C.) Funeral parlors. Miss Scott, the evidence disclosed, stepped off the curb at the corner of Fisgard and Quadra Streets, by Sand's Mortuary, and after traversing three-quarters of the road in an angular direction toward Balmoral and the First United Church, she was struck down, unseen by the driver, and carried twenty-five feet beneath the car.

Still breathing, though bleeding freely, she was extricated by a passerby and carried to the curb. The police ambulance was called and the dying woman was taken to the Jubilee Hospital, where she died within half an hour.

The injuries to her right side were terrible, the evidence of Dr. F. M. Bryant revealed. Not only was there a cavity over her right eye, through which the brain was visible, but her skull was fractured near the cavity and also beneath her right cheek-bone. There was a cut on the right side of her head, her right collar-bone was broken and her right leg was fractured in two places.

CONDEMN RADIATOR ORNAMENTS

Part of the three-point projecting radiator ornament was found lying on the road and because there was a drop of blood on it, it was considered that it was this that had pierced the woman's brain. In consideration of this, the jury, with T. O. Mackay as foreman, brought in a rider to the effect that "long, projecting radiator caps are dangerous and should be prohibited."

The deceased was an active, elderly spinster who wore glasses and was rather deaf witnesses said. She lived at 1152 Pembroke Street, where she kept house for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart. At the time of the accident, 8.45 o'clock on a night when visibility was good and the arc light at the corner of Balmoral and Quadra was burning brightly, she set out to cross the street, dressed in a dark overcoat. She was carrying a black shopping bag.

CAR GOING SLOWLY

Mr. Nickells's car was proceeding north from the Pandora intersection. It was in high and was not traveling much more than twenty miles an hour. Mr. Nickells's wife was riding beside him. The crash, unseen by both occupants, was heard by several passers-by, who came running to the scene. Mr. Nickells, the witnesses said, applied his brakes promptly, got out of his car, looked around and evidentally did not see anything.

William Garrard, the first to see Miss Scott's legs protruding from beneath the car, pulled her out gently and tried to enlist the aid of Mr. Nickells, who appeared dazed. The pair carried her to the curb.

Constable Acreman testified to finding on the road, in addition to the shopping bag, a book belonging to the Victoria Public Library and a soft hat. The bag itself contained a key, a handkerchief and a dental plate. Someone also brought him a pair of glasses, which were said to have been picked up nearby.

LAWYER ATTENDS

Mr. Nickells's testimony was short and was given with the consent of H. G. S. Heisterman, his lawyer, who was present at the inquest. Mr. Nickells had been driving for fifteen years, and though he was sixty-two his eyesight was good and he never used glasses. Mr. Nickells broke down temporarily. He said his wife was in bed, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Others who gave evidence were Charles Scott, Vancouver, brother of the dead woman, and Douglas Smythe and Archie McBride, two youths who saw the woman just before the crash but whose view was obstructed by the church at the time of the accident.

The case had previously been adjourned when Edgelow's baby son was struck down by an automobile and killed. The remand was given until September 30, on the assumption that the proceedings would be opened the following day.

The adjournment was granted on the mutual consent of C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, and J. B. Clearihue, counsel for defence.

IDEALS OF FAMOUS WAR PADRE TOLD

Kiwanis Club Hears of Life and Work of "Woodbine Willy" From Brother

Insight Into Outlook of Man Who Stayed With Soldiers in Front Line Told

The ideals, work and hopes of his brother, Geoffrey E. Studdert-Kennedy, known to the forces as "Woodbine Willy," war padre and writer, were sketched by L. C. Studdert-Kennedy, of the Victoria High School staff, before the Kiwanis Club at its luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

"I base my brother's claim to fame entirely on the regard his fellow countrymen have shown him. He possessed a most remarkable intellect and was a scholar and a profound thinker," said Mr. Kennedy.

"He was humbly grateful for any intellectual successes he may have attained but was devoid of intellectual pride.

COULD NOT BEAR SUFFERING OF OTHERS

"My brother could not stand human suffering in others and never spared himself in his efforts to alleviate it among his fellow men."

As an indication of this, Mr. Kennedy told how his brother had given his own shoes and coat to an ailing returned man whom he found barefoot in the street.

"My brother had a tremendous yearning to know God," the speaker continued, adding that it had been the padre's aim to make God plain to everyone. In all his writings this was evident. It created in him a tremendous spirit of inner conflict.

In agony he conducted his last series of lectures in Liverpool, but he felt he was carrying through a definite mission.

His rise to fame began when he was called upon by the chaplain to go to "the Front" to spread his gospel among the soldiers, Mr. Kennedy said. His brother refused to go, however, unless he was permitted to go right into the front line trench. The padre had taken this stand because he realized he could not help men facing death unless he was with them as they faced it.

WITHOUT FEAR

Fear was unknown to the padre, the speaker declared.

He referred to the name "Woodbine Willy," given to his brother, who was known by the men in the division as the dispenser of cigarettes as well as spiritual solace.

Reading from The London Gazette report on the manner in which "Woodbine Willy" had won the Military Cross, the speaker described how, in the heart of an engagement his brother had passed through shell-raked ground to secure morphia for the injured, and had brought in the wounded, both British and German.

BOOKS SHOWED VIEWS

In his books, one of which had been highly commended by the Bishop of London, he showed his scheme of things in such a vivid light that he became known as a prophet.

He and his family had never ceased to thank Lloyd George for refraining from making his brother Geoffrey a bishop.

The padre had been given a fine London see and after giving lectures in the United States and eastern Canada, he had been summoned to Buckingham Palace to be made a chaplain to the King, who made it a point to be present when he preached.

Reading from his brother's work, he showed some of the views held by the writer. Many of the poems had been written in shell-holes, the speaker said.

WORKED FOR CHANGE

"Geoffrey had ever worked for change and reform, but failed to realize these changes could not be made overnight. At the end of his life he realized the slowness of change," the speaker stated.

War had not led to religious uplift. It was not the gallant gesture some who had not seen it stated, the padre had written. Man did not go out to give his life. He went out to kill the other fellow. War was filthy. It had brought out some heroism, but that characteristic was there, war had not produced it. War had only produced what had been produced by the powers of evil.

In other writings he had criticized the platitudes on religion and the mock Christianity which almost made him blaspheme.

WAR SIGN OF WEAKNESS

"If we go to war, it is because we are weak, not because we are strong," his brother had written. Men would be more than men when the warrior turned to constructive conflict, not that of destruction.

In closing, Mr. Studdert Kennedy read poems written by his brother in the trenches.

Kiwanian Ellis Brown thanked the speaker for his address, paying warm tribute to the memory of "Woodbine Willy."

STAR ARRIVES FOR OPENING OF DRAMA SEASON

Miss Mary Moe, former Keith and Orpheum vaudeville star, arrived here on the Ss. Dorothy Alexander yesterday evening from San Francisco. She was met at the dock by R. D. Wakefield and G. Donald Gray, of the Playhouse Theatre, who escorted her to the Empress Hotel, which will be her home in Victoria.

This morning Miss Moe went into rehearsal on "The Isle of Dreams," in which she will be leading lady, playing opposite Mr. Gray, to open the Playhouse drama season next week.

Miss Moe recalled this morning as she rushed up-town to her initial Victoria rehearsal, that the last time she played in Victoria was on the Orpheum circuit a few years ago when this city was on the broken-week circuit with Calgary, using the Royal Victoria Theatre for the final nights of each week. Recently she has been playing in the south.

Wheat Prices Again Advance At Winnipeg; U.S. Dealers Buying

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Sept. 22.—Inspired by heavy buying credited to southern houses wheat prices again advanced in the market to-day. Values at the close were 1¾ cents to 1½ cents higher than yesterday's closing levels.

The October future closed at 55¼. December ended at 55¾ to ⅞, each recording a gain of 1¾c, while the May delivery closed at 59¼ to ⅜ to show a gain of 1½.

Lower quotation of the Canadian dollar was believed to have encouraged the wave of buying orders during the mid-session. There were no figures available of export trade worked overnight.

Broomhall reported North American flour and wheat shipments at 2,600,000 over the previous week. Broomhall further reported buying of Canadian wheat yesterday due to the drop in the quotation of the dollar.

A fair demand was reported for durums, spreads on the top grades were two cents over the previous close. Cash interest in coarse grains was indifferent at spreads generally unchanged.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Sept. 22—Wheat: Canadian currency broke from 10 to 12 cents below par, being fairly steady at 90 cents compared with the American dollar, while at the same time wheat prices advanced from 2¼ to 2½ cents from the close on Monday. Actually our wheat was still selling at around 51 cents taking the depreciation of the Canadian dollar as compared with the American dollar into consideration.

There was no export business reported and this appears to be practically impossible under present conditions. At the same time there was extensive buying by continental houses and for New York account who were taking the offerings at the present rate of exchange. This finally made the shorts nervous and some covering was in evidence, prices reaching top levels in the late trade.

There is no doubt that a lot of our wheat is being taken on the break in exchange, and this should work for a more constructive situation a little later on in the season. In the cash market there was very little doing in spring grades, but there was a fair demand for durums with some evidence that business had been worked.

The spread on one hard was off ½c, on 2 nor. the spread was up ⅛ and unchanged on other grades. Number 1 durum was up two cents, and 2 and 3 durums up 1 cent.

Liverpool closed 1 to 1¼ higher and Buenos Aires was 1¼ lower at mid day. The Chicago market was fairly steady with prices practically unchanged. The New York market was also steady, without any short selling, permitted a few stocks being fractionally higher, others fractionally lower.

It is reported that Russia is sending much wheat to the United Kingdom in anticipation of tariffs or import restrictions. Sterling exchange was offered in New York at 4.10 and later at 4.13.

Winnipeg futures closed 1¾ to 2¼ higher. Chicago closed ¼ to ⅛ higher and Minneapolis ⅞ to ½ lower.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Wheat: The market showed a firmer tone early, but settled back later to around previous close. The uncertainty in connection with sterling and Canadian exchange checked any great activity in the market. Prices sold off around noon, but met support on the small declines.

Liverpool closed 1 to 1¼ higher, and Winnipeg was higher also, but on the basis of exchange both these markets in reality were lower. Rains the past few days failed to cover the sections of the western portions of the winter wheat belt, which needs moisture badly, and a further decrease is now expected in acreage. So far as prices for wheat are concerned, the general opinion is that they are low enough.

With bearish features discounted look for a gradual improvement in volume of trade as well as in prices, the news of the next few months, should favor holders, corn weakness developed in the September, with deferred months showing little change compared with yesterday's close, although there was a decline early.

Total deliveries for month more than 2,000,000 bushels being put out on the noon deliveries. Receipts were ninety-five cars estimated, and primary arrivals were 360,000 vs. 516,000 year ago. Shipping demand fair and spot basis easier. Two sided market likely for time being.

Oats: Were affected to some extent by action in corn, but market generally was quiet. Deliveries 32,000 bushels. Primary arrivals 331,000 bushels vs. 315,000 year ago. Favor buying side on dips.

Rye: Narrow trade with fairly steady undertone. Deliveries 25,000 bushels. On setbacks favor buying side.

BRUSSELS REOPENS VERY CAUTIOUSLY

Associated Press

Brussels, Sept. 22.—At a bankers' conference to-day presided over by Premier Renkin, it was decided to constitute a consortium with resources of $280,000,000 to support the local market if necessary.

The Brussels' exchange opened at noon for cash operations only.

Group dealings were forbidden and it was announced that quotations 5 per cent below Friday's prices would not be permitted.

Sterling was accepted this forenoon at 28.50 belgas.

On the basis of the latest belga quotation in New York, the sterling rate in Brussels would be about $3.96.

BRAZIL ON DOLLAR BASIS

Striking Recovery In Foreign Bonds To-day; Apprehension Allayed

Canadian Press

New York, Sept. 22.—A striking recovery in foreign obligations featured the bond market to-day.

Gains of several points each were scored by German 5½s and 7s; Belgian 7s, Norwegian 6s, Chilean 6s of 1960, San Paulo 7s of 1940 and United Kingdom 5½s of 1937. The recovery in European issues was accepted as an indication that apprehension over the British crisis was subsiding.

Sharp advances were scored by Uruguayan 6s, Japanese 6½s, Brazilian 8s of 1941, Belgian 7s and Bolivian 7s. Italian issues reflected heavy selling pressure. The 7s of 1951 and Milan 6½s reached a new low at 88 and 68¾ respectively. Italian public utilities 7s dropped some 4 points.

The depreciation in sterling will considerably ease the burdens of Latin-American countries which have large payments to make in that currency and therefore make it easier for them to meet obligations elsewhere.

Events in London have caused the withdrawal of foreign funds to home markets. As the nervousness of investors decreases this capital will have to find employment and a good deal of it is expected to be lodged in dollars, which of course, would help the bond market. However, this is a long range view-point.

Domestic obligations continued to be depressed and further new low levels were reached. Some of the larger losses appeared in Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Erie 5s of 1975, Union Pacific 4s of 1968, Western Union 5s of 1960, Postal Telegraph 5s and Standard Oil of New York 4½s.

Highest prices appeared in a wide variety of rail obligations such as Atchison General 4s, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s of 1960, Chicago and Northwestern 4¾s of 1949, New York Central 5s of 2013, Missouri Pacific series F 5s, and Southern 4s of 1956.

Liberty and United States Treasury issues made irregular gains.

INTER-LISTED ISSUES STEADY AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 22.—Inter-listed issues on the Montreal Stock Exchange were steadier with the afternoon session of trading. Brazilian recovered part of its morning loss. International Nickel was unchanged while fractional advances were showing for Canadian Pacific Railway, Canada Wire and Cable and general steel wares.

Brazilian Traction closed at 9½, down 1½ points for the session. The greater bulk of issues, still under the protection of the minimum lows established by the governing committee of the stock exchange, were unchanged.

TORONTO STOCK "FREE TRADING" ISSUES STEADY

Toronto, Sept. 22—Interlisted issues which were placed on the "free trading" list reacted during to-day's session on stock exchange. They reached their lows for the day in the early afternoon, steadied and were some higher at the close.

Brazilian closed down about ¾ of a point around 9 to 9¼. International Nickel sold as low as 9 but closed slightly above that figure. Norando made its day's low at 1 and closed with a loss of more than one point.

C.P.R. was steady around 16¼. Dominion Stores dropped three points to 16½ and Ford of Canada more than a point to 13¾.

COTTON BELT AND PREMIER SCORE GAINS

Former Registers High For Year; Pioneer Gold Easier at Opening

Vancouver, Sept. 22.—Cotton Belt, Pioneer Gold and Premier were the feature traders in the morning session of the Vancouver Stock Exchange to-day. The former stock sold up to a new high for the year at 30 cents, opening at 25, five points over its previous closing price and gaining five points more for a net gain of 10 points for the session. Premier Gold also staged a rally selling up 10 points to close 45. Pioneer Gold proved an exception to trend and was 10 points lower at the opening at $2.15 but later strengthened to close at $2.20.

The remainder of the mines were generally unchanged with Lorne Gold selling at 8 and Big Missouri failed to register a sale but was quoted at 10 and 12.

Oil stocks held at about their levels of yesterday with Home Oil being offered at 40. Mercury was selling at 8½. East Crest brought a bid of 8 and Sterling Pacific sold at 3.

Canadian Press

New York, Sept. 22.—The financial markets fluctuated uncertainly to-day, but calmed down since yesterday as the world's reaction to the British crisis proved less serious than expected.

Stocks oscillated in a comparatively narrow range, but ended the day with a heavy tone, several issues down 1 to 3 points. Functioning of the market was still prevented by the ban on short selling. The turnover was only about half yesterday's sales of 4,400,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges remained largely demoralized. Sterling held somewhat above $4, but business was restricted to essential commercial transactions. The Canadian dollar widened its discount to 9½ cents.

In the late trading American Telephone, North American and Standard Gas declined 2 to 3 points. Earlier advances of 1 to 3 were generally lost. U.S. Steel closed unchanged. Woolworth lost 2 points. Radio rose 1 point on news of settlement of its patent suits, but lost some of its gain. Alaska Juneau and Gold Dust were strong for a time, rising about 2 points.

BROKERS DEAL ON THE CURB

Overseas Leaders Showed Wide Spread; Gold Mining Shares Attracted Attention

The street dealings continued during the afternoon with good volume in industrials. Gold mines were most supported with rises of two to ten shillings per share.

The fact that the Johannesburg market was closed and the price of gold advanced brought considerable attention to gold mining shares.

No gold was offered in the bullion market to-day, although arrivals consisted of 250,000 sovereigns and 484,080 sterling in bars. The nominal price for gold was fixed to-day at 99 shillings and seven pence per ounce against 84 shillings 9¼ pence yesterday. To-day's price was based on the United States dollar as the principal gold currency and the market took the rate at $4.15 to the pound.

Commodities improved further today. Tin rose £1 a ton, silver one penny an ounce, while cotton and wheat in Liverpool moved against buyers.

COPPER WAGES CUT TO $4.50 AND LESS

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept 22.—A wage reduction of 9.1 per cent, affecting upwards of 10,000 copper mine laborers in Arizona, will become effective October 1.

Notices of the reduction, which bring mine wages back to the base rate of May 1, 1921, were posted to-day at the major mines of the state.

Miners will receive $4.50 a day and muckers $4.

EXCHANGE IN LONDON OPENS WEDNESDAY

London, Sept. 22—The London Stock Exchange will reopen to-morrow, it was officially announced this afternoon. The committee reached its decision after a lengthy session, in which several prominent dealers and brokers were consulted.

Stock brokers favored a resumption of business and saw in the depreciation of sterling an opportunity for better prices for securities and industrial shares.

A demand has arisen from investors since sterling depreciated and the stock exchange closed and several members said to-day that they had done more business in a few hours than they did in a week when the exchange was functioning officially.

When the exchange reopens to-morrow, business will be conducted in an ordinary way without any restriction it was officially stated.

TORONTO MINES CHANGED LITTLE

Canadian Press

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Except among the small group of interlisted issues in which free trading was permitted by special order early to-day, prices on the Standard Mining Exchange at the close to-day showed little change from last night's finals.

Adjustment of values to New York levels was evident in the interlisted group, Noranda leading the downward trend with a loss of $1.40. International Nickel showed only a comparatively small loss, but Dome and McIntyre were down $1 apiece and Imperial Oil dropped $1.

Cansua Mining and Exploration was called for trading in the forenoon and held its opening spread of 20 to 30 in a firm manner.

Continental Rail Fares Are Raised As Pound Value Drops

Associated Press

London, Sept. 22—British railway companies to-day decided to raise fares for continental travel by approximately 20 per cent on the cost of the continental portion of each journey. The action was taken in conformity with the altered value of the pound sterling abroad.

BOMBAY BANK RATE

Bombay, India, Sept. 22.—The Imperial Bank rate of the Bank of Bombay was raised to-day from seven to eight per cent.

Associated Press

London, Sept. 22.—The second day of gold standard suspension found financial London slowly adjusting itself to the new conditions. With the stock exchange closed, dealers assembled in force on Throgmorton Street for a few operations in international securities, the committee having announced it has no objection to members dealing outside the House.

Business was small and quotations on transatlantic favorites showed a wide spread.

Brazilian Traction was 10 to 12, against 11 Saturday; Radio was 16.8, against 16.25; Nickels 10 to 11½, against 10; Steels 90 to 97, against 79 and 80; Hydros 10 to 13, against 11.

There still were no official rates in the exchange market but the unofficial New York cable transfer rate was 4.15 to 4.20, Paris was 105 and Berlin 18½ to 19½.

TURNER FLOW INCREASE IS UNECONOMICAL

Even at Present Production Gas Will Last Fourteen Years, Says Report

Canadian Press

Calgary, Sept. 22—Life of Turner Valley as a gas and oil field is so sho[rt] that an increase in the gas [produc]tion flow of 100,000,000 cubic feet da[ily] would be economically unsound, was declared here yesterday evening [by] R. A. Van Mills in a review of t[he] situation made with F. P. Fisher, Pr[o]vincial Government consultant en[gi]neer. Mr. Van Mills made the surv[ey] at the request of Turner Valley o[p]erators.

Conclusions of the survey furth[er] declared that considering the field [as] a whole the only chance for a reaso[n]able measure of return on present [in]vestments in the field is the continu[a]tion of an adequate rate of retu[rn] over an adequate period of time. no rate of flow will the ultim[ate] return from naptha production [be] sufficient to extinguish the inve[st]ments.

The new source of revenue requi[red] must come from the sale of gas [and] this can only come through conse[rv]ing the supply and marketing it p[ro]fitably.

The statement says: "At the p[re]sent rate of 100,000,000 cubic [feet] daily, it is evident that even allow[ing] the maximum estimate of gas reser[ves] the valley will provide a gas sup[ply] for only fourteen years."

Turner Valley operators, notified [of] the gas quota and the proposal [to] merge forty-three independent [and] Imperial Oil controlled companies [in] the proration of gas sales for dome[stic] use in cities and towns, asked t[hat] the quota be increased to 200,000 cubic feet daily with the right to [sell] the gas and the naptha produ[ct] wherever they pleased. They will n[ot] this week probably to consider Van Mills' report.

New York, Sept. 22.—All dealers [to-]day advanced the bid and asked r[ates] on bankers' acceptances ¼ of [one] per cent on all maturities, resto[ring] prices to the level of May 19, when [the] last change became effective. [The] federal reserve bank's buying rate [on] bills remains unchanged. Dea[lers'] rates have been below that level [and] the change to-day moved their qu[ota]tions in line with the banks.

The rates follow—1 to 3 months [1] per cent bid, 1 per cent asked[; 4] months 1¾ bid, 1⅛ asked; 5 [to 6] months, 1½ bid, 1⅜ asked.

President Cleveland Had Good Voyage Here

ner Brings Cargo and Passengers From Far East scharges 350 Tons of Cargo ere and Proceeds to Seattle

After an eleven-day voyage across the North Pacific from Yokohama, the American Mail liner President Cleveland docked at the Rithet piers this morning at 8.15 o'clock. She proceeded to Seattle shortly before noon. Capt. George W. Yardley, commander of the liner, reported a good voyage, with no rough weather, and little fog. The ship arrived at the William Head quarantine station at daybreak after a slow run up the Straits from Cape Flattery.

The ship brought in only a fair list of passengers this trip, there being fifteen in the first cabin, thirteen in the special class and ninety-eight in the steerage. The new special class accommodation on the President line proved popular with travelers to and from the Orient. The accommodation is fine and almost equal to first class. The space includes a comfortable lounge and smoking, and half of the former first-class dining-room. For Victoria the President Cleveland had 350 tons of general cargo, including a small parcel of raw silk. Canadian mail, amounting to 200 bags, and Seattle airplane mail, twenty-two bags, were left here. Approximately 100 tons of general cargo went on to Seattle. Only seven Chinese steerage passengers disembarked here, the remainder of those aboard proceeding to the Sound port.

Passengers and officers of the President Cleveland said they kept a look-out for the transpacific fliers, Moyle and Allen, but neither saw nor heard anything of them.

Silver-Java-Pacific Ms. Bintang is due early this week to Dingwall Cotts and Company with inward cargo from India and Malay Archipelago. She will load 400 tons of miscellaneous cargo for India.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, Sept. 22—The state board of pilot commissioners for San Francisco harbor met here yesterday with their membership row still unsettled, and failed to take action on the charges against William Randall, bay and river pilot.

The three members appointed by Gov. James Rolph Jr., were present, as was Capt. G. T. January, appointee of former Governor Young, who has been attending meetings, claiming that his term of office does not expire until 1933 and refusing to recognize the ouster of Governor Rolph.

Randall is accused of exceeding his authority by acting without authority as pilot for foreign flag ships, and has been suspended. The case was taken under advisement.

Around the Docks

The disabled Norwegian motorship Bonneville was floated into the Government drydock at Esquimalt harbor late yesterday afternoon after a large amount of her cargo had been taken off alongside the Government wharf. This morning she was high and dry in the dock, while surveyors from various ship repairing firms in Victoria and Vancouver looked over the damages and prepared to submit bids for the repairs. It is expected the successful bidder will be announced to-morrow morning.

Bound for Victoria and Vancouver, the Holland-American motorship Damsterdyk sailed from San Francisco yesterday evening at 5 o'clock, inbound from Rotterdam and London by way of the Panama Canal. With good weather off the Coast the Damsterdyk should arrive at the Ogden Point piers first thing Thursday morning.

A new quarantine tender will be built shortly to replace the steamer Madge which has been in service at William Head for many years, it was announced yesterday by Hon. Colonel Murray MacLaren, Minister of Health and Pensions, during his visit to William Head yesterday afternoon. No details are available regarding the size or plans of the proposed ship, but it will cost approximately $30,000, and will be built on this Coast. Victoria and Vancouver shipyards will shortly receive specifications of the new ship and will prepare tenders.

Outbound on Saturday of this week will be the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia. She will sail from Vancouver in the morning at 11 o'clock, and after a two-hour stay at the Rithet piers here will sail about 6 o'clock in the evening for ports in Japan, China and the Philippine Islands. The liner Empress of Japan is due here early Sunday morning from the Orient. She is coming here direct from Yokohama this voyage.

Off to ports along the West Coast of Vancouver Island, the C.P.R. Coast steamer Princess Maquinna sailed from the Belleville Street docks at 11 o'clock yesterday evening with a complete cargo of Victoria and Vancouver freight and a good list of passengers, including a number of round-trip tourists, despite the lateness of the season.

The Princess Norah is still in the Government drydock at Esquimalt. She has now been repaired and is receiving an exterior coat of paint preparatory to going on the Alaska schedule. She will come out of the drydock in a day or two.

After being in port for more than a year, the United States cableship Restorer left her berth at the Rithet piers early this afternoon and headed for the Hawaiian Islands, where she will do some repair work on the cables there. She will return to Victoria in three weeks or a month. The Restorer was recently thoroughly overhauled, cleaned and painted in Esquimalt and is ship-shape for her long voyage.

The big pleasure yacht Harmony II of Seattle, is now tied up in the inner harbor for the winter. She came in several days ago and is berthed at the new Imperial Oil Company's wharf behind the Post Office building. She is a large-sized craft and before being converted into a private yacht was a United States submarine chaser.

SECOND GRAIN SHIP READY TO LEAVE NEW PORT

Ss. Warkworth Prepares For Voyage; Passenger Excursion to Churchill Announced

Churchill, Man., Sept. 22.—Eager to be away on the journey overseas, the grain-laden steamer Warkworth strained yesterday evening at her mooring ropes in Churchill Harbor, awaiting departure. Plans for departure yesterday afternoon with the latter half of the 545,000 bushel test shipment of prairie wheat were disrupted by delay in receipt of destination orders from Winnipeg.

Shortly before noon yesterday, word was received by Thomas Harling, Montreal agent, who chartered the two test steamers for the Canadian government, that the Warkworth's 268,000 bushel cargo had been sold, but the information from Canadian wheat pools, owners of the test wheat, failed to indicate the port of delivery, so that the afternoon sailing yesterday was rendered out of the question.

Capt. Robert Cormack of the Warkworth, said his vessel would be ready to leave on a moment's notice. He estimated about fourteen days for the voyage overseas.

If the Warkworth gets away on this afternoon's high tide, when she is expected to sail, she will be four days and five hours in the wake of her sister ship, the Farnworth, now in the Straits.

Churchill, Man., Sept. 22.—A passenger excursion from western Canada to Europe through the new port of Churchill and Hudson Bay is being mooted for next summer. The official opening ceremonies will take place then, and it is suggested tourists could attend the opening and then embark for Europe.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 22.—The Ss. Farnworth, which cleared from Churchill on Friday for London with the first shipment of grain from the prairie provinces to Europe via the northern route through Hudson Strait, was reported ten miles northeast of the end of Charles Island at noon yesterday. That position is midway between Nottingham Island and Cape Hopes Advance, where direction finding stations are established.

Winter Cruise Parties To Sail From Victoria

Ss. Niagara to Take Passengers on Attractive Three-month Tour to South Sea Island; President Taft to Take Orient Tour Party in February

Two cruises are planned to start from Victoria early in the New Year according to word received at local booking offices this morning. One will go to Hawaii, the South Sea Islands, New Zealand and Australia, while the other will cross the north Pacific to Japan, China and the Philippine Islands. Both cruises are expected to prove attractive with winter travelers, who wish to get away for a few months after the Christmas and New Year festivities.

Thomas Cook & Son, world-famous travel agents are planning the cruise to the South Sea Islands. It will commence from Victoria and Vancouver on January 6 and will occupy three months. The party will sail on the fine Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara.

IN THE SOUTH SEAS

After leaving Victoria the first port of call on the tour will be Honolulu. Then the programme, entirely unique and different in its offering, will include the Fiji Islands, the Tongan or Friendly Islands, the Samoan group, New Zealand, Australia, the Cook Islands and the Society Islands. Extensive side trips inland to various places of interest are now being arranged.

The second winter tour party will sail from Victoria exactly a month later, February 6, aboard the American Mail liner President Taft. This is an annual cruise and next year promises to be more popular than ever, because of a more extensive itinerary in the Philippine Islands.

In addition to the trips to Pagsanjan and Baguio from Manila will be a five-day interisland voyage through the Philippines on the new steamship Mayon. Members of the party will be able to explore such little-known but attractive South Sea centres as Cebu, Zamboanga and Iloilo.

Going northward from the Philippines the party will travel at the forefront, so to speak, of the advancing spring of 1932. They will visit Hongkong's beautiful blue island and wander through the maze of Canton's million hutnugs. In addition to delving into the wonders of Shanghai, they will visit "China's only paradise," Hangchow.

Sun Yat Sen's tomb in Nanking and a trip northward from Peiping to the Great Wall of China are two more features that have been added to the next Oriental winter cruise.

From Peiping the party will move still further northward to Mukden and will then turn southward, passing through Korea and arriving in Japan at the time of the cherry blossoms. Still other new trails have been added to the cruise itinerary in Japan. The members of the party may then return to America either via Honolulu to San Francisco or direct to Victoria and Seattle.

HELEN DAVIS VISITOR HERE

Two of the interesting passengers aboard the liner President Cleveland which docked here this morning from the Orient were Miss Helen Brooks Davis and Miss Josephine Shaughnessy of Washington, D.C. Miss Davis is the daughter of the Governor-General of the Philippine Islands, and is returning to her school in Virginia, after spending the summer with her father in Manila. Miss Davis and Miss Shaughnessy sailed from Victoria in June aboard the same ship.

While the President Cleveland was in port this morning Miss Davis and Miss Shaughnessy, who are two of Washington's most popular society girls, left the ship and took a drive about Victoria. According to passengers on the steamer Miss Davis proved an ideal traveling companion, being full of life and stirring up ship activities considerably. She was widely entertained by the official set in Manila and enjoyed the vacation greatly.

Other passengers aboard the President Cleveland included Hendrick A. Burgers, manager of the Insular Sugar Refining Corporation in Manila, en route to Seattle on business; Geo. J. Pollar, sales manager of the National Biscuit Company in Los Angeles, returning from a business trip to the Orient; Dr. George L. SEATTLE SHIPPING

Seattle, Sept. 22—Making a round-trip to ten Alaskan settlements in the Bering Sea and Arctic Ocean in the record time of forty days, the steamship Arthur J. Baldwin arrived here yesterday with $250,000 in gold from Nome district mines; 4,000 barrels of herring and 1,000 frozen reindeer carcasses.

The arrival of the gold, a half ton, was almost unnoticed on the waterfront, contrasting with the excitement caused when a ton was landed here in 1897, starting thousands of fortune hunters on the quest for precious metal in Alaska.

Twelve passengers arrived on the Baldwin. The vessel leaves October 1 on its last voyage of the year to Nome, Teller, Golovin and Dutch Harbor.

Eczema Formed Tiny Water Blisters. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out on my neck. It started with an itchy feeling under the skin and then broke out in a rash. It formed tiny water blisters which were very itchy and sore. After a while the blisters would break and a watery substance would come from them. The itching grew worse at night when my body got warm, and sometimes I was awake half the night with it.

"My mother advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some. In about three months I was completely healed after using two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment." (Signed) Miss Betty Fraser, Chancellor, Alta.

Heart of Liane

by MABEL McELLIOTT

©1931 by NEA SERVICE INC.

Strong arms carried Liane. They seemed curiously gentle arms. The man bore her as lightly as though she were a bit of thistledown.

"Whoever he is, he's better than those I left," thought the girl drowsily. She was not fully conscious even yet. She remembered escaping from that horrible house and she remembered a voice calling "Whoa, there!" A man's voice. Then she had stumbled and unconsciousness had overtaken her.

The man moved swiftly. Liane kept her eyes shut very tightly. She feared if she opened them the safety that now surrounded her might vanish and she might discover herself back in that grim prison with the fat woman guarding her.

Then she heard shouts, voices. The man swore once, softly and efficiently. Liane felt a dazzle of light on her eyelids and opened them with a start. The headlights of a car shone full on her face. She felt herself lowered gently. Warm robes were bundled round her.

"You!" she cried astonished to Shane McDermid, who bent over her.

"The kid himself," McDermid said. His smile was grim. A little group of men closed in around them. The police lieutenant was giving orders in a sharp, fierce voice.

"This car belong to them?" he asked. A tall man in a great coat said, "I think so. We've got both birds trussed up in the garage. They expected to make a getaway but found they had a flat and were tinkering with it when we got here. The old woman won't talk. They want to kill her for falling asleep on them." The man laughed.

Liane inquired feebly, "Where am I? Why—that's Clive's car! I know the headlights. They're special. He must be around somewhere."

"So?" Shane McDermid's voice was quizzical. "Boys, go back to the house and take a look around. Something may have broken since you left the rear."

But there was no need for this. A white-faced Clive broke through the brush.

"Liane!" he cried. "You're safe. Thank God!"

"I don't know what it's all about," she said between laughter and tears, "but if you knew how good you look to me—at this minute!—"

* * *

She put one hand to her bandaged head. Clive thought he had never seen her look so utterly adorable. Like a child who has been ill and who rejoices in the promise of an outing.

Liane was moved. "I'm so sorry," she said. "It's been dreadful for you. What does it all mean?"

"The girl back at the house has told us," Clive explained. "It was a blackmailing scheme. Her sweetheart was one of the men who kidnaped you. She was terribly jealous. The woman at the house slipped out and called her up when the man was alone in the room with you. She came to see what was going on. We met her and McHugh suspected she was mixed up in it somehow."

Liane looked up at Shane. "How on earth did you happen to know about it?" she marveled.

He glanced obliquely at Clive.

"I'd been warned there was funny business going on," he said.

Clive asked "What?" sharply.

Shane evaded him. "Whenever one of these 'millionaire baby' engagements is plastered in all the papers," he said, "we gets lots of trouble. Lists of presents and so forth stir the mobs up."

"Oh, I forgot to give them to you," Clive said, diverted. He held out his hand and the girl saw that he had the pearls.

"Well now, you'd better be getting along home, hadn't you?" Shane put in. "And a lucky girl you are, too." Liane smiled at his bluster. She saw beneath that and knew he had been watching, guarding her, ever since she had first told him about the threat at the night club.

"Thanks for everything," she said when she had been lifted into the seat and bundled in fur robes.

"Nothing at all. Just my job," Shane blustered. He was watching with the tail of his eye as the men marshaled Mary Powjeski and the two men into a police car. Officer McHugh was busy bossing them. He was having the time of his life.

"They muddled that," Shane said absently. "Comes from having too many women in these rackets!"

Liane's eyes were dancing. "You don't hold with women?"

The big man stared at her, squaring that formidable Irish jaw of his "They're all right. In their place."

* * *

Clive's foot found the starter. He was racing the engine now. He leaned out, said to Shane above the roar, "Can't thank you, McDermid! If you hadn't been on the job—" He choked on the words.

"I want to come to see you tomorrow," he added.

"Any time. You'll want to prefer charges, maybe. But we have these fellows on other counts, anyhow. Dope peddlers, they are." The lieutenant waved to them. Liane could hear him blustering, as they drove away.

"Well, well, that's a good night's work."

Clive drove as if the demons were after him.

"You didn't let mother know about all this?" Liane exclaimed above the wind and the motor.

Clive shook his head. The girl glanced at the dashboard clock. "Only three!" she marveled. It seemed impossible that two short hours before she had been dancing at the Hunt Club, fresh and carefree in a rose pink gown. So much had happened since. She reached for the vanity mirror in the car's pocket and gazed at herself in horror. A bedraggled bandage decorated her brow. It was stained with blood.

Clive turned to her, asking, "Head ache?"

"A little."

"We'll stop in the village and rout out Doctor McNeill. I want to be sure no infection sets in."

The old doctor, roused from his slumbers, dressed and rebandaged the wound. It was a brief cut, far up under the hairline. "No scar will mar your looks," the old man assured her gravely.

As he worked Liane could hear Clive's voice, speaking over the telephone in reassuring accents.

"Quite all right. Really, she is. We'll be home in fifteen minutes."

"That was mother," he said, returning. "She was on her ear but I soothed her down. Thought you must surely be dead."

The old doctor looked at them with shrewd, bright eyes.

"Bit of an accident, that was," he told them. "Didn't know you were one of those one-arm drivers, Mr. Cleespaugh."

"I'm not." Clive laughed shortly. He said, "Some thugs tried to carry off Miss Barrett here. You may read of it in the papers although I hope we can manage to keep it out."

"Ah!" The physician shook his head. "There's a lot of rogues about these days ready to do harm to anyone."

* * *

At home, they found all lights burning and a worried little group assembled. Fortunately Cass had not been told exactly what had happened. She was still sufficiently an invalid to have facts served up to her in diluted form and she had retired early, unaware of the turmoil around her.

Mrs. Cleespaugh, still in her ball gown, met them in the hall. Liane had not supposed the self-contained old lady was capable of such emotion.

"My dear, my dear!" she kept saying, mopping at her eyes with a cobweb handkerchief. "It's a miracle we have you safe and sound!"

The servants clustered around, big-eyed and exclaiming. Clive demanded peremptorily that Liane should be packed off to bed at once and all the female contingent hastened to obey, with offers of hot water bags, spirits of ammonia, and what not.

"She's had a severe shock, the poor child," Mrs. Cleespaugh said, when she and Clive were alone in the study twenty minutes later. "I've asked Nora to sleep on the couch in her room on the chance she might wake and be frightened. What a dreadful experience!"

Clive was pacing up and down like a caged animal.

"And all this time I was thrashing about doing nothing—!" he burst out after a minute. "I lost my head. "Didn't know what to do or where to turn. If it hadn't been for that fellow McDermid!"

His mother shuddered.

"Don't think of what might have happened," she cried. "It's too frightful. They've got the men, you say?"

"They have," Clive told her grimly. "They'll be punished to the limit of the law."

They sat silent for a few minutes. Then the old woman spoke again. Her voice held a new quality. "The marriage must take place soon," she said firmly. "It's dangerous letting things go along this way. Who knows what might happen to the poor child with all these cranks about? That is what they must be. I feel sure of it!"

Clive brooded over the fire. "McDermid seemed to think Liane has enemies," he said with some reluctance.

"Nonsense," declared the old lady. "Utter poppycock. I hope he didn't say that to her. She might get fanciful about it and that would never do. No, she needs your name, your protection.

"Thanks!" The young man's short laugh was bitter.

His mother ignored this. "The Prince telephoned just before you came in," she said. "He said his car was mired in some swamp out near Babylon. They were following a car they thought answered the description and discovered there were two policemen in it. He was very much chagrined."

"No more than I," Clive admitted. "Although even if McDermid hadn't come in time perhaps I should have been in time to save Liane."

The thought rankled that he had been too late to be her rescuer.

"Go to sleep and forget about it," his mother advised. She patted his shoulder. He kissed her awkwardly. What a really good sort she was, he reflected. Perhaps he had never appreciated her until now.

CHAPTER XXX

Cass persisted, "I don't like it, I tell you. It's queer." It was a day or two after the Hunt Ball. Liane, still a little weak and spent after her great adventure, lay huddled among the pillows of her damask chaise longue.

Cass repeated the words, "I don't like it."

Liane asked languidly. "What?"

"Oh, the whole business. There's something ugly and frightening about it. It looks as if someone particularly did not want you to marry Clive. As if you had an enemy—"

Liane sighed.

"Mother, please don't worry, dear. I'm safe and it's all right and all those wretched people are safely behind bars. Fourth offence, it was, for the men and the girl's been sent to reform school or some place like that. Clive said they found cases of opium hidden away in the house."

But she shuddered a little, in spite of her brave words. She did not like to think of that fetid house in the clearing.

"When I think of what might have happened to you," Cass went on, shaking her head.

"Don't think of it. It's foolish. I'm out of their reach."

"Oh, it's not those miserable people I'm afraid of," Cass said. "They don't count. But what this man McDermid said to Clive makes me believe that you have an implacable enemy some place."

Liane shivered but she manged to laugh.

"How silly! Mums, you're playing a melodrama.

Why, Liane wondered, did they all use that phrase," safely married?"

"By the way," Cass went on, "as soon as you're able Mrs. Cleespaugh wants you to look at some samples for the wedding dress. Moire, satin, velvet. Oh, they're so lovely! You'll never know which one to choose."

"Lordy," Liane moaned, "I wish I might put on a dark blue suit and slip away somewhere and have it done. But I suppose that would be considered dreadful."

"I know," Cass sympathized. "But you must remember your wedding is in the nature of a state function. It's of great importance."

* * *

Liane looked at her mother curiously. She had never known her to be so firmly set on anything as she was on this formal wedding. "But it's natural," the young girl thought. "She thinks of it as a pageant with me as the main figure. A drama with me in the leading part."

(To be continued).

Uncle Wiggily And Johnnie's Pops

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Johnnie was a little squirrel boy. His last name was Bushytail, and I think you may remember that I have told you some stories about him and about the fun he had with Uncle Wiggily, when, once, he went to the circus.

Well, this is a different story about Johnnie and also about Uncle Wiggily. It is also a story about pops, and if you wonder what they are, please read on to the end of the page and you will find out.

One day Mrs. Longears said to her rabbit husband:

"I am going to have a little party for the children."

"How about Baby Bunty?" asked Mr Longears.

"Of course, Baby Bunty is coming to the party," said the rabbit lady.

"I'm glad of that," said Uncle Wiggily.

Baby Bunty was an orphan rabbit who lived in the hollow stump bungalow with Mr. Longears and the other forty 'leven sixteen rabbit children.

"Well," said Mrs. Longears, "it would be very sweet of you to go to the store and get some candy for the party."

Away they started.

"It shall be done immediately, which Wiggily answered.

"I think you had better do it with money," said his wife, sort of making a joke. "If you go to the store with pleasure only, they might not give you candy for the party."

"I will take money with pleasure," said Mr. Longears, and off he hopped over the hills and through the woods to the store to get some candy for the party his wife was going to have for the animal children.

Uncle Wiggily had not hopped very far before, in the woods, he saw Johnnnie Bushtail, the squirrel boy.

"Where are you going, Johnnie?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I am going to the store for some pops," chattered Johnnie. Chattering was the way Johnnie always talked. All squirrels chatter.

"Oh, so you are going to the store for some pops, are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I suppose you mean bottles of soda which I have often heard spoken of as pop," said the rabbit. "And if one bottle of soda is a pop, I suppose two, or more bottles are pops."

"No, excuse me for saying so," chattered Johnnie. "I am not going after soda pop. I am going after lollypops But I call them pops for short. It's a way I have."

"Oh, I see," and Uncle Wiggily laughed. "Well, as long as you are going after pops, or lollypops, which are the same thing, as I am going after candy for a little party my wife is making up for the bunny children, why, we might as well go along together."

"Surely," chattered the squirrel boy. So he and Uncle Wiggily hopped along over the hills and through the woods until they reached the candy store There Mr. Longears bought jelly beans, licorice drops, marshmallows and many other kinds of candy.

Johnnie Bushtail bought lollypops, or, as he called them, pops, one for himself, one for his brother Billie and one for Sister Sallie who was a little squirrel girl, as cute as a gum drop.

"Well, is everything all right, Johnnie?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he put the candy he had bought into his pocket and started to hop back to his hollow stump bungalow.

"Everything is all right with me," chattered the squirrel boy. "I have a pop for Billie, a pop for Sister Sallie and one for myself."

"Let's go!" called Uncle Wiggily.

Away they started, the old gentleman rabbit and the little squirrel boy. Uncle Wiggily carried the bag of candy he had bought for his wife so she could make a little party. Johnnie carried the pops, or, if you insist on being correct and formal, lollypops.

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily reached a sassafras bush, out from behind it jumped a magazoolum. Now a magazoolum is a very queer animal. He always wants to pull the pink, twinkling nose of rabbit gentlemen. And as soon as the magazoolum saw Uncle Wiggily, right away he howled:

"I'm going to pull his nose!"

"No, indeed you aren't," chattered Johnnie, the squirrel boy, politely but firmly. "Indeed you aren't!"

"Who will stop me?" howled the magazoolum.

"I will," said Johnnie, bravely.

"What with?" asked the magazoolum.

"With my pops!" chattered Johnnie. With that he took the sticks off the lollypops and tickled the magazoolum so hard in the ribs that the Bad Chap laughed and sneezed and got the hiccoughs and couldn't pull Uncle Wiggily's nose. So everything was all right. The bunny hopped home with the candy for the party. Johnnie scrambled home with the pops without the sticks and if the bathtub will please stop chasing the wash rag around the cake of soap, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's candy party.

LIQUOR SEIZED BY DRY SQUAD AT U.S. BORDER

Over 2,500 Bottes Taken From American Legionaires at Detroit

Detroit, Sept. 22.—United States customs inspectors said yesterday evening they had confiscated more than 2,500 bottles of beer, whisky, champagne and other liquors from American Legion men returning from Windsor, Ont., to Detroit, during the evening.

The inspectors said they believed word had been passed among the war veterans here for the national convention that United States customs inspectors would not molest American Legion visitors bringing liquor from Canada into the United States.

So widely had the erroneous word of leniency been spread, they said, that legion visitors were attempting to bring liquor through Detroit River ports in case lots, making no attempt at concealment.

Inspectors said the bottles were broken in the presence of the erstwhile owners and the contents drained into sinks.

PAY FOR INQUIRY SAYS MEIGHEN

Canadian Press

Kincardine, Ont., Sept. 22.—If the people of Ontario desire a royal commission to investigate payment made to John Ard Jr. of Toronto by the Hydro-electric Power Commission of Ontario, they ought to pay for the cost of the probe, declared Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister of Canada, in an address here yesterday. Mr. Meighen was speaking before municipal representatives of the Eugenia Hydro-electric Commission.

Mr. Meighen, who is a commissioner of the Provincial Hydro Board, declined to discuss the dealings of Mr. Aird in connection with the Madawaska power purchase of the Beauharnois project. "I have really nothing to divulge upon that famous man, Mr. Aird," he said.

"If I have my way, those who seek a further explanation will have to pay for their investigations. It will not be loaded upon the hydro of the province," he declared.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Mother and Wife Who Tear a Man's Heart in Two Between Them—Shall Parents Censor Letters?

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married to the prettiest, loveliest little girl I have ever seen. We have been married three years. She works in an office. Spends her salary on the home and helps me to keep the home fires burning. She is unselfish. Never nags or fusses. A dandy cook and housekeeper. But here is the rub: My mother is old and she is very attached to me and she wants to live with us. I have four sisters, but being the only son, my mother wants to be with me. My wife objects, saying that as my sisters do not work in an office my mother should stay with them. She does not object to my giving mother money, but she says that she wants to live with me alone and she doesn't want the additional trouble and work of caring for an old person, and that unless my mother leaves she is going to leave me.

When we are alone we are the happiest, jolliest couple in the world, but when my mother moves in my wife is the 'most silent, sick-hearted little thing you ever saw. I love my mother and hate to ask her to go to my sisters, yet if my wife leaves me I will be heart-broken. What can I do? Give a man a lift, please, Miss Dix.

A READER.

Answer—In the eternal squabble between mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law and it makes up a large proportion of the misery of the world—it is a strange thing that neither one ever seems to consider the man they are fighting over like dogs over a bone.

They both claim that they love him, yet neither one cares enough for him to be willing to sacrifice her own jealousy and sense of possession and her own desire to monopolize him to secure his happiness. They know that they torture him with their quarrels. They know that they tear his heart to pieces by running to him with their tales against each other. They know that they make his life a burden to him by calling upon him to take sides, but the sight of his suffering does not cause them to try to get along together in peace.

It does not make the mother leave the home that she sees she is wrecking by her presence. Nor does it cause the wife to show forebearance and patience and kindliness to her husband's mother and put up with her eccentricities and her faults for his sake.

Truly no man is ever put in a crueler position than that of the one who loves both his mother and his wife, who is appreciative of all that they have done for him, who desires to do his duty by both of them and who is torn asunder between them. And surely the mother and the wife love themselves better than they do him, if they are not willing to sink their differences for his sake.

If mother unselfishness was really as great as we exploit it to be, in a case where a woman saw that she was ruining her son's life and that she was the cause of constant friction between him and his wife, she would withdraw from the scene of strife and at least leave her son in peace. Not that her cause is not as just as that of the wife, not that her claims upon her son are not as valid, but because she puts his happiness above her own, and she knows that she is unintentionally alienating him from his wife, that a divorce will be disastrous to him in many ways and that a broken-up home means always a calamity to a man.

Such seems to be the best course in this case. No matter how much your mother wants to live with you, she should deny herself that pleasure if your wife is so violently opposed to having her. There would be no happiness for her in a home in which she knew herself to be so unwelcome and so she will be far better off with your sisters than she will be with you. And if you had to live under the strain of trying to keep the peace between two antagonistic women you would break under the ordeal.

Of course, your wife has this much justification, that she works in an office and has to do her own housework afterwards, so it is harder for her to take care of your mother than it is for your sisters who do not work outside of their homes, but is is not the additional labor of taking care of your mother to which your wife objects. It is her desire to monopolize you and have her house to herself alone.

A natural desire, and yet a very selfish one, for if she had any generosity of soul she would feel some gratitude toward the woman who had gone through the travail and turmoil of rearing for her a good husband and she would have the understanding of that other woman's love for him and her desire to be with him. Nor would she begrudge her husband the privilege of caring in her age for the mother who had cared for him when he was weak and helpless.

But is there anything in the world sadder than the situation of these unwanted mothers, who have given their lives to their children and who, when they are old, have their children's doors barred against them by their selfish in-laws!

* * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Has a parent the authority to read all letters, personal or business, sent to a young woman who is of age, then give to the girl what the parent thinks she should have, suppressing the balance?

MARY BROWN.

Answer—Certainly not. Every girl of twenty-one has a legal right to her own correspondence. Neither her parents nor any one else has a right to open her letters, and long before she is twenty-one she has a moral right to get her mail without its being tampered with.

Long-distance Talking

The longest distance I ever talked on a telephone was from Pittsburgh to Los Angeles. The connection was good—I have never heard a voice more clearly over a telephone than I heard at that time.

A modern telephone with dial

Thirty years ago—a short time in the history of the human race—it was not possible to talk to a person a mile away even by shouting.

Sound waves travel through the air at the rate of one mile in just about five seconds. If a person in Pittsburgh could talk to someone in Los Angeles without the help of telephone or radio, five hours would be needed for sound waves to travel there.

Words travel over telephone wires at the estimated rate of 56,000 miles a second. This means that a word spoken in Pittsburgh is heard in Los Angeles as a small fraction of a second later.

In 1915 a telephone line was opened between New York and San Francisco. Four hundred and thirty thousand poles were used in setting up the 3,400 miles of telephone wire. Since that time telephone service across the Atlantic has been started. Cables are used to carry the voice. You may talk to a friend in London—if you want to pay the money!

The dial telephone is now employed in many cities. Instead of telling "central" the number you want, you turn a dial several times, matching movements to letters and figures in the telephone number.

When you move the dial, electrical impulses are carried to the telephone exchange. At the exchange a remarkable machine takes the place of girls formerly employed. You are connected with the desired telephone, unless the line is busy.

There is little doubt that telephones will be used for a long time to come, but I think that inventors will some day make it possible to use private radio-phones on the same scale telephones are now used. It may be possible for a person riding on a train or airplane to call up his family and hear their replies to his questions.

A further-step will come when we can see the face of the person to whom we are talking by radio-phone, in addition to hearing his words.

The extras who appear as soldiers in First National's great dramatic triumph, "Chances," starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr., now at the Capitol Theatre, underwent the same training for their screen roles as they would have undergone in a training camp in war times.

The work was reduced to a minimum because every man was a war veteran and had only comparatively few new things to learn. Two weeks were spent in rehearsing the battle scenes which comprise but a small part of the picture and then a week and a half was spent filming them.

COLISEUM THEATRE

The late naval censor, Commander R. W. Wilkinson, D.S.O., of the Admiralty, acted as liaison officer between the Mediterranean Fleet and the film production unit under the direction of Anthony Asquith when the two forces combined to re-enact the stirring and heroic landing of British troops at Gallipoli for "Tell England," now showing at the Coliseum Theatre.

This distinguished officer was himself in command of a destroyer which took part in the bombardment at Gallipoli. During the activities of re-enacting for the camera of the landings at V Beach, which took place at Malta, Commander Wilkinson took charge of the Royal Marines who were "loaned" by H.M. Navy to play the parts of British troops in the picture, and advised the directors on naval detail and the authentic and memorable happenings at Galliopli.

Some day Warren Hymer hopes to play a real gentleman in some picture. In "Oh, For a Man!" Fox movietone comedy at the Playhouse Theatre, Hymer plays the role of Pug Morini, known to fistic fame as "The Walloping Wop." In his prior success, "Up the River," he was Dannemora Dan," a convict. Jeanette MacDonald and Reginald Denny head the featured cast in this story of the unusual romance of a prima donna and burglar who meet under strange circumstances, fall in love and are married and then trouble begins. DOMINION THEATRE

Mood music for moving pictures is again coming into its own, after being temporarily banished to make way for dialogue. To-day, after a couple of years of dialogue-filled film fare, the talk is giving away and music expressing the feeling of scenes is being introduced to fill in the silent stretches.

An indication of the new place of music in creating motion picture moods was noticeable in the recent Tallulah Bankhead-Clive Brook hit, "Tarnished Lady." But mood music really comes into its own in talking pictures in "The Smiling Lieutenant," which, starring smiling Maurice Chevalier, is now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

Just as Paul Whiteman himself stands supreme in the realm of jazz music, so does his first starring picture, Universal's "King of Jazz," which opened yesterday at the Columbia, stands supreme in the world of entertainment.

This colossal revue is an all-Movietone and all-Technicolor medley of inspiring spectacle, bewitching melody, matchless dancing, clever specialties and hilarious comedy. And in all of these its excellence is surpassing.

In addition to the feature, "King of Jazz," the management has engaged a clever vaudeville duo in Micky and Randal, who are a smart couple displaying plenty of versatility. They present songs, duets, dances, funny gags and instrumental items. They will close their season on Wednesday and patrons are advised to see this very amusing pair.

ETHEL LUENING HERE SATURDAY HAS FINE VOICE

Talented Young Canadian Has Sung Leading Opera Roles in European Centres

Out of a little town in Saskatchewan a few years ago came a young lady and found a job in Vancouver with a traveling light opera company. Her singing, in a small part, amazed the audience. And then one day it happened that the leading soprano left the company—and the rest of the story goes on as one would guess

The young girl, Ethel Luening, coloratura soprano, had her chance—she knew the role, and her singing in it made a sensation. She will be heard in concert here Saturday evening, in the Shrine Auditorium.

Back in her school days a vocal teacher had recognized the beauty and power of her voice, and had given her singing lessons. French, too, she had learned, and German, and had taken lessons in violin and piano.

From light opera the girl went into a moving picture palace to sing, and it was there, in Vancouver, that Vladimir Rosing of the American Opera Company of Rochester, N.Y., heard her clear and bell-like soprano, and offered her a scholarship for study in Rochester. From then on her career has been a series of triumphs for her exquisite voice.

On a tour in Germany, she sang an entire opera in German. She was called a "meisterin" in that country of musically educated audiences. Miss Luening is a coloratura soprano whose voice has the rare merit of becoming more musical and vivid the higher it mounts."
